MADRID (UPI) — Palestinian guerrillas seized the Egyptian Embassy Monday and threatened to kill the ambassador and two aides unless Egypt withdrew from peace talks with Israel. After a 16-hour siege, the Arabs flew to Algiers where they promised to free their hostages.

The news agency Europa Press said there were 13 persons on the plane, including four Arab guerrillas, five hostages and four others who were not identified.It took off from Barajas International Airport at 3:51 a.m. (9:51 p.m. EDT Monday.)

The Palestinians agreed to leave the embassy after talks with Arab ambassadors who persuaded them to fly to Algiers, release their hostages and surrender to police.

Police stood well back as the commandos and their hostages left the embassy and piled into a bus that whisked them to the airport.

En route to the airport, the commandos threw themselves on the floor of the bus, covering their heads with what appeared to be nylon netting. The hostages sat up straight.

One of the commandos carried a case with a wire leading to what looked like a remote control switch, witnesses said. They said other commandos carried guns and one had a grenade.

The commandos seized the embassy Monday morning and took Ambassador Mahmoud Abdel Ghaffar and two of his aides hostage. The ambassadors of Algeria, Kuwait, Jordan and Iraq negotiated with the Palestinians through bullhorns and with notes slipped under the barricaded door of the embassy.

The commandos had threatened to kill their hostages unless the Egyptian delegation withdrew from peace talks with Israel in Geneva on an interim agreement in the Sinai.

Although the commandos themselves put their number all day at five, police later said there were only four.

The news agency Europa Press later said the four unidentified persons on the plane were crew members.

An estimated 300 riot police kept a crowd of several thousand back from the embassy building on Velasquez St.

The Arab ambassadors, including Ghaffar, signed a statement denouncing the interim Sinai agreement between Egypt and the "so-called state of Israel". The statement said the agreement was "directed against Palestinian people, its objectives and future aspirations."

The Geneva talks between Israel and Egypt were to prepare for a final signing the agreement engineered by Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and initiated by the two countries Sept. 4.

An estimated 300 riot police kept a crowd of thousands away from the embassy building on Velasquez street.

Two yellow buses drew up outside the embassy to take the Palestinians, their hostages and other Arab ambassadors accompanying them on the flight to the airport. At the airport, heavily armed police cleared part of the buildings and all terraces.

Iraqi ambassador Hassan Nagib, who took part in all the negotiations, said a "peaceful solution has been found." Contacted by a Spanish television reporter by telephone inside the embassy, Ambassador Ghaffar said, "I will be free this night."

In Cairo, President Anwar Sadat made a speech announcing his approval of sending a plane to Madrid to fly out the guerrillas.

The speech was addressed as much to Syria and the Palestinians as to his audience.

Political attacks in recent years

By United Press International

Monday's seizure of the Egyptian embassy in Madrid, Spain, by Palestinian guerrillas was the latest in a series of politically motivated attacks on foreign installations designed to wring concessions from governments. Others have included:

— Feb. 6, 1974: Guerrillas from the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine and the Japanese Red Army seized the Japanese embassy in Kuwait, took hostages and demanded the safety of two Arab and two Japanese gunmen holding hostages on a ferryboat in faraway Singapore. The Japanese government flew all the guerrillas to South Yemen, and the hostages were freed.

— Sept. 13, 1974: Three Japanese Red Army commandos seized the French embassy in the Hague, Netherlands, took 11 hostages and held nine of them for five days. They finally freed their captives in exchange for the release of a terrorist held in a Paris jail, a $300,000 ransom and a getaway plane that flew them to Damascus, Syria.

— Sept. 27, 1974: Seven left-wing insurgents kidnapped a U.S. government official in Santo Domingo, the Dominican Republic, and went to the Venezuelan consulate, where they took more hostages and demanded a $1 million ransom and the release of 38 political prisoners. The guerrillas released their captives two weeks later in return for a government offer of safe-conduct to Panama.

— April 24, 1975: Six West German anarchists belonging to the Baader-Meinhof guerrilla gang stormed the West German embassy in Stockholm, Sweden, and took 12 hostages. They executed two West German diplomats but the Bonn government refused to give in to their demands for the release of fellow terrorists and they finally blew up the building. Two guerrillas died in the blast and the others were captured.

— Aug. 3, 1975: Five members of the Japanese Red Army shot their way into the U.S. embassy in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia, and seized 50 persons, including the American consul. The raisers obtained the release of five of their colleagues held in Japanese jails and were flown to Libya.

Americans, Soviets talk grain

MOSCOW (UPI) — American and Soviet negotiators Monday night concluded preliminary talks on a long-term grain agreement, which could involve "bushel-for-barrel" trading of surplus American crops for Soviet oil.

Charles Robinson, U.S. Under-Secretary of State for Economic Affairs who headed the American delegation, will leave for Washington today to report to President Ford, a U.S. spokesman said.

"The negotiations still are in a preliminary stage," the spokesman said. He added that the talks could be characterized as "satisfactory thus far."

Another U.S. official said no further meeting would be held unless the Soviets ask for one.

The chief negotiator for the Soviet side was Foreign Trade Minister Nikolai S. Patolichev.

President Ford sent Robinson to Moscow to seek an arrangement under which the Soviet Union would buy grain.

Farmers fail to unlock ban on grain sales

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The head of the American Farm Bureau Federation Monday pleaded unsuccessfully with President Ford to end a one-month ban on U.S. grain sales to Russia and warned that farmers oppose any long-term sales agreement negotiated between the two governments.

Federation President William J. Kuhfuss said Ford refused to lift the 30-day moratorium that the administration imposed on grain sales to Russia while representatives of both governments meet in Moscow to negotiate a long-term purchasing agreement.

But, he said, the President reaffirmed his commitment to a market economy and assured him that more American grain will be sold to the Soviet Union this year.

"I was not completely satisfied," Kuhfuss said as he left the White House after his meeting with Ford and Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz.

Kuhfuss later told reporters that his 2.4 million members "vigorously oppose the trend toward state-trading, or government-to-government dealing in commodities, as evidenced in the current U.S. negotiations with the Soviet Union" — a trend they fear will spread to other areas and upset the market economy.

He described the current negotiations as "nothing more than attempts to establish food cartels based on political, not economic, considerations."

Kuhfuss said the farmers would not oppose a long-term agreement if it were negotiated by private interests. But he cautioned that such an agreement "does not mean stability in the economy" because other costs — including labor — affect domestic prices.

Threatening a production cutback of grain by dissatisfied farmers, Kuhfuss also charged the current moratorium only serves to confirm the suspicions of some purchasers that the United States "is not a reliable supplier."

According to Butz, Ford told Kuhfuss that he extended the moratorium on grain sales to Russia until mid-October and launched negotiations with the Russians primarily because of the "dilemma" created by the refusal of AFL-CIO longshoremen to load any of the Russian-purchased grain onto ships. Butz said Ford "simply wanted to cool it for 30 days."

But Kuhfuss said it was a "gross insult" to farmers who were excluded from meetings that lead to the arrangement. Those meetings included Ford, Labor Secretary John Dunlop, AFL-CIO President George Meany and leaders of the maritime unions.

Nearly 2 million children across the nation were affected by teacher strikes Monday, but an agreement to end the New York strike—if consummated—could send 1.1 million children back to the classrooms.

Representatives of 65,000 teachers and the New York City school board were scheduled to resume negotiations at 8 p.m. Monday after a recess for the Yom Kippur holy day. A spokesman for the United Federation of Teachers said the two sides were so close to agreement they could clear up remaining details within an hour.

The union was ready to set contract ratification machinery in motion. A meeting of the UFT executive board was set for 9 p.m.

Teacher strikes continue

Settlement of the New York City teachers strike—the largest in a spate of classroom shutdowns across the nation—appeared imminent Monday, but there were no signs of a break in the 9-day-old strike of Chicago teachers.

Scientists to testify about CIA poisons

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Top CIA officials and scientists will testify today about the agency's illegal stockpiling of cobra venom and other deadly poisons, the Senate intelligence committee announced Monday.

The panel's chairman, Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, told reporters that witnesses at the public hearing will include CIA Director William E. Colby, former director Richard Helms, and present and former officials familiar with the spy agency's clandestine operations.

It was Colby who reported to the committee last week that internal investigations turned up supplies of lethal chemical and bacteriological substances maintained and replenished despite President Richard M. Nixon's 1970 order that such materials be destroyed.

Church's announcement came as the House committee on intelligence, headed by Rep. Otis Pike, D-N.Y., pondered whether to comply with White House demands that it return classified documents from which excerpts were made public last week.

The White House and the CIA objected to but four words in the five paragraphs the House panel released, which dealt with failure of American intelligence agencies to foresee the outbreak of Arab-Israeli fighting in 1973. The administration demanded return of all documents supplied to the committee under subpoena, and declared it will deny access to any additional classified materials.

SAN JOSE, Calif. (UPI) — An armed and wounded hijacker trying to escape from a Continental Airlines 727 jet with a gun held at the head of a hostage was picked off and shot to death Monday by a police sharpshooter.

The single shot shortly after midnight ended a four-hour rampage by Fred Salomon, 24, San Jose, in which he stabbed a woman he tried to rape in her home and wounded one of four hostages he took in his hijack attempt, police said.

Salomon was wounded when he went to the cockpit window of the plane and a member of the police Special Weapons and Tactical Team known as SWAT opened fire.

Police said the rampage began when Salomon entered the home of Eileen Rosas, 28, mother of three, and stabbed her in the heart. Her children called officers, and Mrs. Rosas was reported in critical condition at a hospital.

After the stabbing, Salomon kidnapped the four hostages in a cross-city spree, stole three vehicles, threatened several other persons en route to his hijacking attempt and wounded a doctor captive who tried to escape.

The doctor, Frank Wiefels, kidnaped at gunpoint from San Jose Hospital, was shot in the stomach as he tried to escape from the 727 during Salomon's tense armed negotiations with police at the airport.

Police said Salomon shot Wiefels as he knelt at the top of the plane's boarding ladder. The doctor tumbled down the ladder to the ground and crawled under the aircraft for safety. He was hospitalized in serious condition.

The SWAT sharpshooter picked off Salomon as he stood on the ladder with a .38 caliber revolver at the head of airline mechanic Alden Lindekugle, 40.

"He had agreed to come out of the plane himself without his weapon and with his hands up," said police Lt. Gary Leonard. But Salomon used the mechanic as a shield, Leonard said.

"One of our officers, about 50 feet away, shouted three times, 'Drop your weapon,'" Leonard said. "Salomon didn't answer. He began to point the gun at the officer. The officer began to run away."

Then the SWAT sharpshooter, inched for cover behind another airliner, cut down Salomon.

The pinpoint shot in the dark "missed me by only six or seven inches," said Lindekugle. "I heard a muffled shot and saw him collapse out of the corner of my eye. I had heard the hammer on his gun click and thought I had just about had it."

Industrial production shows gain

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Industrial production jumped 1.3 per cent in August for the highest percentage gain since the economic boom preceding the 1972 presidential election, the Federal Reserve Board reported Monday.

The measurement of the physical production of the nation's factories, mines and utilities stood at its highest level since January, the Fed said.

The percentage gain was the highest since a 1.4-per-cent surge in October, 1972, when the Federal Reserve was expanding the money supply to produce a period of prosperity that ended in mid-1973.

Majority can't see the light

NEW YORK (UPI) — The American people believe by a 56 to 28 per cent majority that the nation will be in a recession this time next year, according to a Louis Harris Survey released Monday.

The figures reflect a higher degree of pessimism than at any time since last March.

The poll of more than 1,500 persons across the nation cites what it says are obvious reasons for this gloom. One is that the percentage of people who feel prices are increasing faster than a year ago has grown.

Last April a 43 to 37 per cent plurality felt that the inflation rate was lessening. The new survey shows that a 49 to 27 per cent plurality now believe it is going up.

In addition, 67 per cent of the people polled think that unemployment will rise a year from now rather than decline.

As for present conditions, 83 to 12 per cent of the persons polled think the country now is in a recession.

The above sentiments account for the poor marks the Ford administration received in the new survey on economic matters.

Seventy-nine to 18 per cent of the responders to the poll gave the government a negative rating on "handling inflation."

The Fed said every measurement of output gained from July to August, but the primary boost came from production of home furnishings such as appliances, furniture and carpets.

There were considerable increases also in production of raw steel, textiles, paper and chemicals. The only declines were for industrial fuel and power, which reflected strikes in the coal industry.

The 1.3-per-cent rise in August was nearly triple the increases of 0.5 per cent in both June and July. Industrial production declined for eight straight months before the June increase.

Despite the recent gains, the index stood only at 112.9. That was the highest level since 113.7 in January, but still 9.8 per cent lower than August a year ago.

Unusual court date a case of kindness

By BRUCE POSTEN
Pocono Record Reporter

MILFORD — A southern deputy sheriff was treated to northern hospitality Sunday in the court chambers of Pike County.

Usually off on the weekend, Pike County Court officers left the comfort of their homes or the spiritual serenity of church to arrange a special extradition hearing for Frank Fortner — a fugitive from justice charged with burglary in Georgia.

"I think what we did Sunday was unprecedented," said District Attorney Harold Thomson, Jr., "but everyone agreed to do it . . . so we did it."

"We got Judge James Marsh to drive up to Milford from Stroudsburg, got the clerk of court out of church and even rounded-up the prothonotary," Thomson said.

The reason for all the haste, according to Thomson, was to help Deputy Sheriff George Walker of Fannin County, Georgia who had driven north with a fugitive warrant on Fortner.

Thomson said Walker had arrived in Bartonsville Saturday night only to learn that his wife's brother had died back home.

"Walker asked me if there would be any way to move up the extradition so he could get back in time for the funeral," Thomson said.

"I tried my best to accommodate him by calling everyone Sunday morning. We held the hearing at 11 a.m. Sunday and as far as I know it's the first time a hearing has been held on a Sunday in Pike County," Thomson said.

Thomson said Walker is a retired Army captain who used to work at the Tobyhanna Army Depot before moving to Georgia.

"It's remarkable how we got everyone out," Thomson noted, "even the defendant agreed to it."

What's news

Proxmire finds more waste

WASHINGTON — Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., said Monday the Navy and Air Force wasted money during the past two years flying thousands of officers to social gatherings at Las Vegas, Nev. He gave his monthly 'Golden Fleece' award to the Navy 'for using 64 aircraft to fly 1,334 officers to the Hilton Hotel in Las Vegas . . . during the height of the energy crisis in 1974. The flights cost more than $191,000 in tax funds and squandered 347,000 gallons of fuel in the midst of the most severe energy crisis the nation has ever faced,' Proxmire said.

Ky university speech opposed

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. — Thirteen prominent University of Virginia faculty members have written a letter protesting the upcoming speaking engagement of Nguyen Cao Ky, former premier and vice president of South Vietnam. Ky is scheduled to speak at the university Wednesday night. The letter described Ky as a "willing instrument of the Johnson Administration's massive intervention in Vietnam" as head of the South Vietnamese air force, which the letter said became a major conveyor of heroin to the urban markets of Vietnam where thousands of American GIs became addicts.

College no longer top goal

WASHINGTON — The proportion of male high school seniors planning to go to college decreased from 1972 to 1974, the Census Bureau said Monday. And for the first time in the three years the statistic was being kept, a 'significantly' higher proportion of female senior planned to pursue higher education, the bureau said. The bureau, part of the Commerce Department, said in a report that it surveyed more than 3,000 high school seniors in each year since 1972, and broke them down by sex and race, and whether they had definite or 'tentative' plans about higher education.

GM reports higher sales

DETROIT — General Motors Corp. Monday reported its early September new car sales, including the higher-priced 1976 models, were the highest since 1971. All other automakers reported a drop from the previous year. Although the total cars sold by all U.S. automakers was down 7.5 per cent from a year ago, GM's 2 per cent increase pushed the auto industry to its fifth best Sept. 10 period in history. Ford Motor Co. sales were down 21 per cent but still the second best early September in 15 years, Chrysler was off 2.3 per cent and American Motors off 14.5 per cent. Compared with early August, sales for the industry were up 14.5 per cent.

Safeway accused of cheating

WASHINGTON — The Federal Trade Commission Monday accused Safeway Stores Inc., the nation's largest supermarket chain, of cheating consumers by advertising food at sale prices but selling it at regular prices. The loss to shoppers, one FTC lawyer said, has been substantial over the years, although no complete dollar estimate has been made. The complaint against Safeway completed a sweep by the agency against the country's 'big three' food store chains. A&P, the No. 2 chain, and Kroger, No. 3, have been hit with similar litigation. The FTC said Safeway, which operates 1,950 stores in 27 states and the District of Columbia and which did $6.77 billion worth of business in 1973, engaged in false, misleading and deceptive advertising.

Ethiopian kidnapers name price

U.S. shutdown demanded

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (UPI) — Secessionist guerrillas Monday demanded an end to American military aid to Ethiopia and the closure of a U.S. naval facility in exchange for the lives of four kidnaped Americans. Western diplomats said the United States and Ethiopia had opened urgent talks on the future of the Kagnev communications facility, which has come under increasing attack by the rebels. Two American technicians were captured by guerrillas of the Eritrean Liberation Front in an attack on the base last Friday and two others were kidnaped two months ago. A statement released to newsmen by a Front spokesman in Beirut said the guerrillas "will not bear any responsibility" for the lives of the four captive Americans if the demands for an end to American aid and a shutdown of the base in north Ethiopia were not promptly met. (In Washington, The White House said President Ford

UN reps debate aid policy

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI) — Delegates to the General Assembly's special session on aid to underdeveloped countries struggled to reach a compromise Monday between the American position and that of the so-called Third World.

A U.S. spokesman said there was no final agreement but a British official said there seemed to be more than a 50-50 chance of getting a settlement.

A U.N. spokesman said a single resolution would eventually go before the Assembly for approval, but there was still work to be done on the key issues of trade and the transfer of resources from the rich to the poor countries.

Disagreement among the delegates held up a meeting of a committee which is trying to draw up the resolution.

But the committee members, who represent the entire U.N. membership, met informally, and the "Group of 77" developing countries went into secret huddles several times.

The delegates were working against a 3 p.m. EDT deadline today.

Simon blames Congress

Energy drift threatens recovery

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. (UPI) — Treasury Secretary William E. Simon warned Monday that unless Congress and President Ford can agree on a national energy policy, the OPEC nations will hamper the nation's economic recovery.

"We have offered more compromises to the Congress than I care to remember," Simon said, "and we stand ready to compromise now. But at some point, the Congress must pull itself together and join us in this effort, or like Samson, we're going to give it all away to those Delilahs of the Middle East."

Simon told the opening session of the Southern Governor's Conference the economic recovery of the last several months "has been stronger than most forecasters predicted."

"And I think it will continue to be stronger and that the unemployment rate will come down more rapidly than many now think," Simon said.

Simon, President Ford's chief economic adviser, and Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield were the leadoff speakers at the 41st meeting of Dixie governors at Walt Disney World.

In separate appearances before the 15 governors, Simon and Mansfield gave different views on the chances and terms for a compromise on oil price controls.

Simon said controls should not be extended beyond 39 months "at the outside." Mansfield predicted Ford would accept a longer period, "and I'd say the compromise will be somewhere between 39 months and four years."

Mansfield said the price of foreign oil will be increased substantially if the OPEC cartel of oil producers, which meets Sept. 23, yields to the suggestions of such members as the Shah of Iran for a step price rise.

Prices on domestic oil, temporarily free of control as a result of the President's veto of a price extension bill, will follow suit, the Montana Democrat said, and "a new wave of inflation may be expected to run through the economy."

During a question and answer session, the governors showed concern over financial problems of the states and the size of the federal deficit.

Gov. Sherman W. Tribett of Delaware said if oil prices rise "I and the other governors will be forced to recommend an increase in gas taxes just to hold our own in the face of declining use."

Others called for increased federal revenue sharing to help states avoid the fate of New York City, which is on the brink of bankruptcy.

Natural gas shortage expanding

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Even if the coming winter is mild, emergency actions can only make a small dent in the anticipated shortages of natural gas, top energy officials said Monday.

Federal Energy Administrator Frank G. Zarb Federal Power Commission Chairman John N. Nassikas and aides testified at a Senate Commerce Committee hearing on natural gas shortages.

Both the administration and a group of Democrats have introduced differing legislation for emergency pricing and allocation steps to spread the shortages out and stimulate some temporary new supplies.

Zarb said with an average winter, the natural gas "shortage" — the amount of gas that customers could use compared with the amount available — would be 1.3 trillion cubic feet. That is nearly one-fourth more severe than the shortage of last winter, he said, and "we could have a more serious condition with a more serious winter."

Selling usually regulated natural gas, in interstate commerce, for a six-month "emergency" period without regulated rates could stimulate 200 billion cubic feet extra gas, Zarb estimated. Requiring utilities and industries to switch to another fuel, he said, could bring on 50 to 100 billion cubic feet more.

Through conservation and other administrative actions, perhaps the overall total could come to 300 to 600 billion cubic feet. At the most optimistic assessment, that would be less than half the anticipated shortage, he said.

Nassikas agreed with the general estimate of what the emergency legislation could generate. He said prices floating free could rise to $1.50 per thousand cubic feet, compared with approximately one-third that rate under federal regulation.

Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, said the main differences between the bill he is cosponsoring and the Ford suggestion are the price they would allow and the classes of consumers they would give access to unregulated gas supplies.

The Democrats' bill would limit the price to the average of unregulated prices as of a certain date.

Pat on the back really a reach for your vote

HARRISBURG (UPI) — To the Las Vendadores Drill Team, to singer Bobby Vinton, to the Steelton-Highspire Steamrollers and to Miss Marsha Hocker, who set the world record for treading water:

The Pennsylvania Legislature sends you its greetings and congratulations, three cheers for a job well done and its highest honor — the legislative citation.

These awards, printed with fancy script on parchment paper, embossed with a gold seal and suitable for framing, are presented to you because of your unique contribution to Pennsylvania.

Unfortunately, they also are sent if you are any one of the following:

A beauty queen, retiree, newlywed, a person with the good fortune to live past age 90, a baton twirler, a member of a winning sports team, Optimist or volunteer fireman, veteran or crossing guard, Girl Scout leader, a student who made the dean's list or National Honor Society, a loyal committeeman or a couple married 25 years or longer.

In fact, there has been an explosion of citations in the legislature in recent years. While they were once used to honor the most unique achievements, there is growing evidence that citations are now handed out to just about anybody for any reason.

"They give them out like candy," grumbled one House staffer involved in processing the citations. Another called it a "free-for-all."

Legislators gave out a record 8,018 citations during the last session. They have doled out 2,086 so far this year.

"Why do they do it? In many cases its politics," explained on legislative staffer. "A person who gets a fancy citation with a personal note from a House member or senator, is much more likely to remember that guy on election day."

Robert Wise, head of the legislative reference bureau, estimates it costs at least $50 to process each citation.

Wise, whose bureau handles citations, has sent letters to House, and Senate members pleading with them to cut down on these expensive pats on the back. In March, he wrote House members telling them:

"Action by the House in awarding a citation should constitute a signal honor, yet citations for engagements, marriages, births, deaths, wedding anniversaries and birthdays, except in unusual cases, cheapen and detract from the importance of other citations..."

"If the practice of congratulating a constituent when he or she gets engaged, married and has a baby becomes widespread, not only does the citation become common place, but the work load in the bureau will be overwhelming."

Marilyn Magee is the woman in Wise's bureau who handles citations. It is a fulltime job yet Mrs. Magee needs several laws students to help her.

She's drawn up some guidelines for legislators, but admits she doesn't have the power to enforce them.

The cost of a letter, mailed for a dime, would certainly be cheaper than the fancy citations.

According to Wise's own figures, the bill for citations during the last session was $400,900.

Banks up rate on interest

By United Press International Bank of America of San Francisco, the nation's largest commercial bank, and several other large banks Monday raised their minimum interest rate for corporate loans to 8 per cent.

First National City Bank of New York, the second largest, began the trend toward a higher prime rate Friday when it raised its rate to 8 per cent from 7 3/4 per cent.

The prime, which had declined to as low as 6 1/2 per cent in June, has been on the rise since July when the Federal Reserve tightened credit and money flow.

The prime is the minimum rate set by commercial banks for loans to their best corporate customers. Most corporations pay a higher rate.

In addition to Bank of America, banks raising their rate to 8 per cent Monday, included:

First National Bank of Chicago, Northern Trust of Chicago, Continental Illinois of Chicago, Security Pacific National Bank, Pittsburgh National Bank, Mellon Bank of Pittsburgh, National City Bank of Cleveland, Cleveland Trust Co., National Bank of Detroit, First National Bank of Oregon and Chase Manhattan, Manufacturers Hanover, Bankers Trust, Irving Trust, Chemical Bank and Morgan Guaranty, all of New York.

N.H. re-runs senate race

CONCORD, N.H. (UPI) — New Hampshire voters return to the ballot box Tuesday to select a winner in the disputed 1974 U.S. Senate election, a rerun contest colored by 1976 presidential politics.

The three-way struggle between Republican Louis C. Wyman, Democrat John A. Durkin and the American Party's C. Carmen Chimento is yet another effort to settle last fall's election — a race in which almost 223,000 persons voted in a virtual tie between Wyman and Durkin.

Slow, but sure view of America

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — What began two years ago as an idle suggestion has carried Bob and Helen Bergmark halfway across the United States on foot and bicycle to celebrate the bicentennial.

They have found a renewed faith in America and its people.

"A couple of years ago one or the other of us suggested we take a summer off and walk to California. It was a big joke at the time, but the more we thought about it the more we liked it, so we decided to try it this year," Bergmark said during a stop.

Bergmark sold his bakery and his wife took a leave of absence from her job as office manager of a tire company outlet. They took out their savings, received some help from a shoe manufacturer and a motel chain with free lodging, and set out.

The Bergmarks, both 46, started a cross-country walking odyssey July 4 from their home in Warwick, R.I. They trudged down the eastern seaboard to Winchester, Va., swung onto U.S. 50 highway and made it to Cincinnati Aug. 27.

At that pace, they figured they'd be bravwas being kept informed about the situation.

"We are in contact with the Ethiopian government," said deputy press secretary William Greener. "We have received some information from the Eritrean Liberation Front with some demands."

(But a State Department spokesman said, "In general, the responsibility for obtaining the release of the Americans rests with the Ethiopian government." In the past, the United States has refused to deal with movements demanding ransom or other concessions.)

The Ethiopian government said Sunday the base was "in the final stage of closing down."

Western diplomats said the statement surprised Washington, which considers the outpost a vital communications link and had hoped the technicians would be able to maintain it through 1978.

A second election was called after a pair of tedious state recounts and seven months of U.S. Senate review failed to select the nation's 100th senator. The final count left Wyman with an apparent victory by two votes.

Wyman, 58, a former five-term congressman, campaigned down to dusk emphasizing his record of "proven effectiveness." As state attorney general in the 1950s, the silver haired lawyer built a reputation hunting Communists and he recently said the late Sen.

Joseph McCarthy, R-Wis., "had his heart in the right place" but "went too far."

Durkin got the jump in the rerun campaign leaving Wyman to rely on the excitement of a last minute presidential visit to overcome the apathy that marked the seven week summer rerun.

President Ford and unannounced GOP presidential candidate Ronald Reagan both found time last week to campaign beside Wyman in this state which has the nation's first 1976 presidential primary.

ing winter blizzards in the Rockies, so they bought 10-speed bicycles and have been pedaling since. Now halfway to Los Angeles, their destination, the Bergmarks are a little tired, a little worn in the saddle, but still enthusiastic.

Their children, Susan, 19, and Paul, 17, who are staying out of school this year to make the trip, have been acting as advance scouts for their parents with the family car.

"Our children would deposit us each morning where we left off the night before, then meet us for lunch and drive ahead to arrange the night's lodging, then meeting us where we stopped for the night," Bergmark said.

"We decided they'd get quite a bit of educational value out of the trip," Bergmark said. "The way the (school) strikes are going they might get back before the other kids do."

The biggest lesson of the trip has been about the American people.

"We have found in our travels that our faith in America and the people has certainly been reaffirmed," Bergmark said. "People are the same as always. They're simple, down-to-earth, friendly. Things in the country have changed but I don't think the people have."

Good food, fun lure people to Greenview Farm

By MAURENE RUFE
Pocono Record Reporter

McILHANEY — The smell of fresh warm cinnamon slump breakfast cake swirled around the steam rising from a pot of homemade oatmeal just in time for the huge breakfast bell at Greenview Farm to begin clanging out its early morning invitation to the guests that had come to the West End for a relaxing weekend of homemade delicacies and old-fashioned fun.

There was plenty to do after the 8:30 a.m. breakfast. The guests were adept at plucking the chickens for the Sunday dinner and there was plenty of homemade ice cream to be made by hand. The last guests to turn the paddles got to lick the ice cream.

While the younger visitors were out riding in the pony-pulled carriage on the scenic 120-acre farm, the adults were donning some antique bathing suits for a dip in the farm swimming hole that had been dug out years before in the McMichael's Creek.

That was two generations ago when the rate for three full-course meals a day and lodging for the week only cost $8 to $10 per person. There's very little chicken plucking by hand these days at the Greenview farm in McIlhaney, but the swimming hole is still in use and the homemade West End dinners are still the same as they were when they first began to be served three generations ago.

Now owned and operated by Dorothy Nicholas, granddaughter of the first in the family to offer dinners to boarding guests, the farm accommodates 95 full-time guests and sports a tennis court, basketball court and a swimming pool. However, the farm still consists of 120 acres and all the food for the dinners is still raised by hand.

Baking is done by family members and vegetables and produce for the unique dinners, which are also available to people who do not board at the farm, are grown by one of Mrs. Nicholas's sons. There are no steam tables in the huge kitchen at the farm — everything, including homegrown potatoes, are served fresh.

Mrs. Nicholas and members of her family can and freeze hundreds of jars of pickles, relishes, fruits, and vegetables for use throughout the year. Their homemade cinnamon buns, soups, shoefly and pumpkin pies have become a local legend with West Enders, in addition of the hundreds of guests from all over the East Coast that return year after year to the family resort.

Dotting the old windows of the huge dining room areas of the converted barn are red calico-like country curtains, that pick up the color of the green linen tablecloths covering the huge antique farm kitchen tables. Hand-hewn beams on the first floor of the barn complex mix together with a huge stone fireplace and ancient farm artifacts to enhance the country atmosphere of the recreation room. Oak flooring on the second floor dining area of the building was originally cut from native trees.

There are two main dining rooms on the second floor of the complex that contain a seating capacity of 150. As many as 450 dinner guests have been served holiday dinners in the dining room area in one day, however.

There are six rooms on the third floor of the barn, with eight bedrooms available at the main lodge, once the original farmhouse on the property. In addition, there are 12 cottages at the family resort.

The farm has actually been in the family for five generations, originally belonging to Mrs. Nicholas's great grandfather Wesley Green. It was a dairy farm, initially.

When Mrs. Nicholas's grandfather and father both died when she was still a young girl, her mother decided to start offering dinners to guests in the family home. Dorothy was nine at the time and on occasion the farmhouse kitchen and living room accommodated up to 25 people for one meal.

Gradually the farm took on boarders and Dorothy began to strike up friendships with children all over the eastern United States. Staying for two to three weeks at a time 40 years ago when the resort first began opening its doors to the public, the same families still return to Greenview year after year to share in the homestyle cooking and relaxing West End atmosphere.

The kitchen in the huge barn-restaurant is open to all the guests, and the freedom, along with the friendly personality of Mrs. Nicholas and members of her family, cause guests to feel, as one woman put it, "as if you are going to grandmother's house for the weekend."

Accepting guests full time from July 4 to Labor Day and weekend guests from Memorial Day to the Fourth of July and from Labor Day to Columbus Day, the resort is also open for public dinners each Sunday from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. The public is also invited to come to the resort for dinners on evenings when part of the facility is being rented for a banquet.

During the peak guest season, the public is invited to come to the barn for all meals. The Greenview Farm is now serving dinners each Sunday and will remain open to the public until Thanksgiving Day. Reservations must be made one day in advance. The facility is also used for private parties during the spring and fall.

The cost per person for Sunday dinner is $4.50 or $5 on holidays, with the banquet price set at $6 per person. (This banquet fee includes free use of the recreation hall on the barn's ground floor for the night.) The rate for boarding adult guest is $18 a day (which includes three meals a day) or $95 for the week. The price varies for children, according to their age. The fee also includes all activities at the farm, including free use of the 20 by 50-foot pool, shuffleboard and free square dances.

A typical dinner at the farm includes fresh fruit cup, relishes, bread and butter, applesauce, cranberry relish, chicken and waffles, mashed potatoes and gravy, salad with homemade dressing, filling, green beans, carrots, and strawberry shortcake with fresh crushed strawberries and home made whipped cream.

In addition to Dorothy, her aunt Ruth Stevens and her cousin Jeanne Stevens help prepare the food, which includes baking sometimes up to 50 pies. Mrs. Nicholas's children, Joel, Tim and Jane, all help in running the farm. Head waiter Dale Bone of Saylorburg has been employed at the farm for eight years along with 30-year veteran Minnie Snyder. Other waitresses at the farm are local West End girls.

Humane society afraid Pike is going to the dogs

By BRUCE POSTEN

Pocono Record Reporter
MILFORD — Kennels can't contain the canines in the county of Pike. And the county Humane Society doesn't know whether it can shoulder the financial burden of providing more housing.

"We just don't have the facilities to take care of all the strays we've been getting," said Mrs. Mae Lloyd, president of the Pike County Humane Society.

"Overcrowding is the problem. We are housing eight or nine adult dogs and several puppies in only three runs at Boxer Haven Kennels," she said.

Theodore Moyer, owner of Boxer Haven Kennels and investigating officer for the Humane Society said he offered to build the three-run addition to his private kennel about three years ago to help the Humane Society. He gets $1.75 a day for boarding each dog.

It (the three-run kennel) was adequate when we had two or three dogs, but now we have up to 10 dogs here at a time. It's just not the correct facilities to keep them in," Moyer said.

In an effort to solve the problem, the Humane Society met with a representative from the state Department of Agriculture to investigate funding for a county animal shelter.

Mrs. Lloyd said the society was told it would cost $45,000 for a 20-run shelter with the state paying $10,000 of the total cost. The society would have to run the facility for 10 years and would be paid $2 for every-time they put a dog to sleep.

"I really don't see how we can afford it. We are having a meeting in one or two weeks to discuss it, but as of now it seems to be financially impossible," Mrs. Lloyd said.

The Humane Society makes most of its money by holding an antique show, membership drive and cake and rummage sales. The organization makes about $1,500 on its activities and collects membership fees of $3, $5 and $10. An individual can purchase a lifetime membership for $100.

"We only have 12 active members and between 375 and 400 total membership. There is only so much money you can get out of a town the size of Milford — we are not the only organization in the area and we can't drain the town," she said.

The cost of a new shelter is not the only problem that worries Mrs. Lloyd and other members of the Humane Society.

"There are food and maintenance costs to think about," Mrs. Lloyd said.

And those costs can be quite burdensome if the Humane Society sticks to its present policy of keeping animals several months.

"The state representative said current state policy is to put an unlicensed animal to sleep after 48 to 72 hours, but we've been known to keep animals for eight months," she said.

Ross prepares building regulations

West End Bureau

SAYLORSBURG — Ross Township supervisors may be only a month away from adopting a building permit ordinance for the township, a necessary requirement to fulfill the conditions of their federal flood insurance application.

At their regular meeting this week, the supervisors reviewed a proposed ordinance drawn up by solicitor Edward Hoffner, which calls for all building in the township to have an approved permit. There will be no fee for building up to $200 in value. There will be a $5 fee for building valued from $201 to $1,000 with a $1 additional charge for each $1,000 of value after that.

The ordinance is only tentative at this point and the supervisors said the minimum $200 figure could be raised to $500 by the time the ordinance is adopted. According to the federal flood insurance requirement, however, all and any building, regardless of cost, would have to be regulated with the permit system.

The ordinance will cover mobile homes and will not allow a permit to be issued for construction of a building on less than one acre of land unless the permit is for repairs to an existing structure.

A building permit officer will administer the act and construction will have to begin six months after the issuance of the permit. The permit can be revoked after inspections by the building permit officer.

In addition, any building constructed in non compliance with the ordinance can be declared a public nuisance by the supervisors. If anyone refuses to comply with the ordinance they can be fined from $25 to $100 and could serve up to 10 days in jail if the fine is not paid. Each day of violation will constitute a new offense. If passed, the ordinance will take effect in five days.

In other business the supervisors signed a final plot plan for 101 lots in the Vista Estates subdivision, developed by Tom Rue next to the old Floyd Smith farm on Twp. Road 361.

Sewage Enforcement Officer Truman Burnett indicated that alternate sewage systems might be necessary on some of the lots in the 132.9-acre tract.

"Testing indicates alternate disposal systems could be prevalent in this development. There must be sufficient suitable area for replacement of this alternate subsurface absorption area with another of equivalent size and design," said Burnett.

The supervisors decided the one-acre minimum on the lots would afford sufficient space if an alternate system is necessary.

In other business, the supervisors decided to apply for errors and omissions insurance at an annual premium of $341.

EAST STROUDSBURG — East Stroudsburg firemen were called to a brush fire on Hill Street on East Stroudsburg State College property at 12:49 p.m. Sunday. Four trucks and 43 men responded.

Portion of pension funds released to municipalities

HARRISBURG — Auditor General Robert P. Casey has released data showing a record $21.3 million is available for distribution to police pension funds for the 1974 tax year to 914 Pennsylvania municipalities, but that slightly less than half that amount — about $10.4 million — will be allocated immediately.

Casey said that the remaining money is being withheld until those municipalities submit required actuarial studies to the Department of Community Affairs.

Allocations withheld from Monroe County include: Stroudsburg, $9,903; Pocono Township, $3,393; Barrett Township, $4,445; Stroud Township, $13,646; Coolbaugh Township, $2,944; Tobyahanna Township, $3,394; Delaware Water Gap, $967; East Stroudsburg, $14,319, and Mount Pocono, $1,850.

In Pike County, Matamoras received $4,063. But $2,159 is being withheld from Milford.

In Northampton County, 10 municipalities received money, including Upper Mt. Bethel, which received $6,052.

Of the 14 municipalities who did not receive funds, Wind Gap will receive $4,115 and Portland will get $1,110 after they file actuarial studies.

In addition, an allocation of $9,834 was withheld from Bangor because the borough improperly refunded members' contributions in the amount of $4,991, according to Casey. An additional $68 was improperly expended for bank charges, he said.

Money for the pension funds comes from the two per cent tax upon the gross premiums received from out-of-state casualty insurance companies. A municipality must certify to the auditor general's department that it has at least one full-time paid policeman working at least 40 hours per week at a definite salary.

Election no jail excuse

Monroe County needs a new, bigger jail. On that, everyone agrees. What to do about it is another matter, though.

Local officials are waiting for the state to move on the regional jail concept that was sabotaged by the residents of Moosic, where the facility was to have been located. The thinking is that to build a new jail in Monroe County would be foolish if the state subsequently built one nearby. And a waste of money, too.

Well, that's true. But so too is the axiom that waiting for the state to do anything is a waste as well — a waste of time and patience. And, considering inflationary trends, of money.

Monroe County Commissioner Arlington Martin hinted darkly that the jail issue would arise during the campaign preceding November's commissioner election. When is it going to start? It is really too early in the second week of September to begin discussing issues vital to the area?

If history is any guide, the jail issue will get very little attention and hardly any substantive discourse during the coming campaign. And that's a shame, because the jail issue has been with us since the end of World War II, when the need for a new jail first was called to the public's notice.

If the country is in dire need of a new prison, then it should not wait for the state, but get together with other counties expressing similar needs — Carbon, Luzerne and Pike, for example — and present the state with a petition and site for the facility, an alternative for the Moosic building that local opposition rendered politically impossible.

Still traffic problem

The Sarah Street extension, opened Friday, certainly is an improvement over the winding, steeply pitched roadway that existed before.

We can think of one benefit that will become apparent when the first snows fall: No longer will lines of traffic have to wait while some poor soul tries vainly to wend his whirring, skidding way up North Fifth Street around what was an impossible corner in bad-traction weather.

But a solution to one problem often brings up another. When more people begin to use Sarah Street as a bypass to Stroudsburg's business district, traffic controls are going to be necessary. The state already is planning to study the need for a traffic control signal at McConnell and Sarah Streets.

What's next? Perhaps a study of the needs at Sarah and Fifth. Increasing traffic will create a problem there. And that's ignoring the recurring traffic problem at McConnell and Fifth, which can be frustrating and which, incidentally, increases traffic on Sarah Street when observant motorists note the congestion at the bottom of the hill (Fifth and McConnell).

The fact is that this section of town is a real traffic problem. We're glad to see some progress being made, and an apparent determination on the part of Stroudsburg Borough to do something about it. But the problem isn't solved by a long shot.

Stamp news

'Valueless' issues

By RAY PATTON

The two issues being released for Christmas, no date or city as yet scheduled, will be printed with no value shown. This was done as the Postal Service expected to increase the rate from 10 to 13 cents.

The Postal Service has announced that this new postal rate will go into effect Dec. 26, thus keeping the 10-cent rate until after the heavy Christmas mail.

As they will have no value printed, the stamps will be sold at the prevailing postal rate when they are released. Thus if they are sold at the present 10-cent value, it seems that on Dec. 25 all that remain will be destroyed as we do not think the Postal Service will overprint the new value on this issue.

Club news

The Pocono Mountain Stamp Club will open its 1975-76 season tonight with the first meeting at 8 o'clock. All members are reminded to bring the "stubs" for the drawing to this meeting.

Some program notes on New Hampshire election

Jeffrey Hart

Hampshire Democratic organization remains about as far removed from contemporary liberalism and the New Politics as it is possible to be.

It is sometimes forgotten that neither Eugene McCarthy nor George McGovern actually won the New Hampshire primary. They merely "did well," as that was defined by the media. And there is one other curiosity. The polls indicated at the time of the 1972 primary that a majority of the Democratic voters perceived George McGovern as a conservative.

They did so partly out of ignorance, but also because the state's largest newspaper, the Manchester Union Leader, was depicting Edmund Muskie as a super-liberal and at the same time downplaying McGovern. Without knowing much about McGovern, the voters assumed that he had to be more conservative than Muskie. The Manchester Union Leader also skewered Muskie on the famous "Canuck" letter.

Considering the composition of the New Hampshire Democratic vote, a major mystery of the 1976 election has to be the decision of the Wallace people not to enter the primary here. His handlers explain that N.H. is a "handshaking" state. Because it is small, a candidate can actually meet a large proportion of the voters. Because of his limited mobility, Wallace would be at a disadvantage against a handshaking opponent.

As one wag observed after the 1972 primary, if George McGovern had spent only a few more days in the state he would have satisfied the residency requirement and been able to vote for himself. But even conceding the handshaking argument, Wallace would almost certainly do very well among New Hampshire's blue-collar Democrats, and his decision to stay out may go down as the first tactical blunder of the 1976 campaign.

More conservative than incumbent Republican governor Meldrim Thomson it would be impossible to get. Yet in the last gubernatorial election, the Democratic candidate Richard Leonard found it impossible to distinguish his own policy positions from those of Thomson. Leonard was reduced to running on the claim that he was the "sane" candidate, and Thomson won handily.

Governor Thomson's popularity resides in the fact that there is no New Hampshire income tax, and Thomson has lived up to his pledge to keep it that way. Across the river, Vermont provides an instructive contrast, since Vermonters pay a state income tax that amounts to 28 per cent of their Federal tax, with little visible benefit from it. Thomson's winning slogan was "Ax the Tax," and he has done so.

The Republican Senatorial candidate Louis Wyman is a conservative Republican, but listening to his opponent as the voting approaches you get the impression that John Durkin has hired some of Gerald Ford's speech writers. Rhetorically, at least, it would be difficult to get to the right of Durkin. Significantly enough, to get the nomination, Durkin first had to defeat a Dartmouth professor who was running as a center-right Democrat friendly to national defense.

Hardly liberal

The New Hampshire Republican Party can hardly be called liberal, but it tends to be the party of "nice people" — old-line Yankees, civilly minded WASPs, and good-government types who like to discuss "issues." In contrast to the blue-collar Democrats and ethnic Democrats, the New Hampshire Republicans think of themselves as anti-machine and "enlightened." Bear in mind that the New Hampshire Republicans voted for Henry Cabot Lodge over Barry Goldwater in 1964, but, also, that they gave John Ashbrook short shrift in 1972 and gave the liberal George Romney so little support in 1968 that he had to quit before the voting. N. H. Republicans are "centrist" and "clean."

To get the Republican gubernatorial nomination, Meldrim Thomson had to conduct a kind of insurgency against the Republican establishment. Incumbent Walter Peterson was the "nice people's" candidate, a trustee of Dartmouth and a most attractive squire type. But the voters were not quite so certain that he would "ax the tax," and went for Thomson.

Going out on a limb, some predictions: Wyman should beat Durkin. Blue-collar Democrats are not supposed to turn out for special elections. Reagan has an excellent chance of defeating Ford, despite New Hampshire Republican regularity. Both Republicans and Democrats in New Hampshire are furious about the rising cost of heating oil, and blame it on Washington. Reagan's tax-limiting position is sure-fire in N.H., and he is the more effective campaigner.

Roscoe Drummond

Washington focus

Reagan about to say no? Most Republican Party leaders say that former Gov. Ronald Reagan of California is having second thoughts about challenging President Ford for the GOP nomination. They expect him to announce his support for Mr. Ford as the 1976 nominee soon, and this will mean that the President can stay out of the primaries and concentrate all his resources on the election itself.

The latest Gallup Poll shows Mr. Ford leading Reagan nationwide among Republicans by 26 percentage points and the Field poll shows him ahead even among California Republicans by 7 percentage points.

Democrats have ghastly memories of N.Y. It is 51 years since the Democratic Party could bring itself to pick New York as the site of its national convention after what happened in 1924.

It took 103 ballots before the delegates could choose Wall St. lawyer John W. Davis over Gov. Al Smith as their candidate.

Will 1976 be something like 1924? The Democrats expect a long series of indecisive ballots after which a negotiated decision by political trading will be necessary. The prevailing view is that no Democrat can afford to campaign in enough primaries to pick up anything near a commanding delegate lead. To enter them all would cost nearly $20 million and the legal spending limit for the primaries is $10 million.

Births, deaths, divorces in Russia. The latest official census statistics show some unusual conclusions. Far more men than women die in middle age and this is attributed to heavy drinking. The proportion of marriages ending in divorce is increasing dramatically. The Asian part of the Soviet population is increasing much more rapidly than the European. In January of this year the total population of the Soviet Union stood at 263,261,000.

Soviets to third world: Don't count on us to help. That was the blunt word which Ambassador Malik passed out at the special U.N. General Assembly meeting dealing with economic aid to the developing countries. The Soviets disclaimed any "responsibility for the backwardness" of the Third World economies and offered no material assistance.

Apparently Moscow will vote for anything the Third World wants at the United Nations provided it doesn't have to do anything about it.

Will Soviets honor their Helsinki promises? Andrei Gromyko gruffly told a high German official recently to "forget them." He said that if anyone thinks the pledges at the Helsinki conference concerning great freedom of speech and movement of peoples in Eastern Europe will change conditions "must be a mastodon."

Oil Buccaneers: From our oil notebook, here are more fascinating facts about those modern buccaneers, the oilmen, whose profits are more fabulous than the pirate treasures of the Blackbeard era:

—The world's No. 1 corporate power is Exxon, the supercorporation, whose $10.9 billion profit last year exceeded the annual budgets of most nations. Its corporate ruler, J. Kenneth Jamieson, is little known outside of the world's board rooms. Yet his $677,000 annual salary is more than triple what President Ford is paid. Exxon faces antitrust charges brought by Connecticut, Florida, Kansas and the Federal Trade Commission, not to mention three air quality violations, 45 environmental violations and 53 oil discharge violations.

—The multinational, multi-billion-dollar Texaco empire operates in 84 countries, with its own fleet of 205 tankers and 37,000 miles of pipeline. Last year, the company paid a scant 1.6 per cent federal tax on a $28 billion net profit. This means the American taxpayers indirectly helped to keep Texaco's executives in Cadillacs and their women in mink. The company is defending itself from more than 50 legal actions involving antitrust, ecology and pollution.

—Mobil also paid a 1.6 per cent federal tax last year on an even greater $3.6 billion net profit. Founded in 1866 as Vacuum Oil, Mobil is now deep into oil shale, natural gas, coal and solar power. This company, too, is defending itself from multiple environmental, water quality and antitrust charges.

—Gulf, the oil company of the fabulous Mellon family, ran up its profits a fantastic 440 per cent during the 1972-74 period. Last year, the company paid less than a 5 per cent federal tax on a $3.8 billion net profit. Some of the Mellons, with personal fortunes in the hundreds of millions, have managed to juggle their finances so that they sometimes pay no federal income taxes at all. Gulf is fighting environmental regulations, has been cited for environmental violations and is involved in illegal political contributions.

—Standard Oil of California by no means limits its operations to California. It is active in no less than 35 foreign countries, is also building a large tanker fleet. In 1973, the company was slapped on the wrist for monopoly practices in American Samoa. It has also been cited in antitrust cases.

—Only two of the Big Eight pay federal taxes worth mentioning. Last year, Standard Oil of Indiana paid an 18.2 per cent tax on a $1.7 billion net income. Shell paid a 28.6 per cent tax on a $903 million income. Yet even these taxes were far below the 49 per cent average corporate tax. Nor were the two companies so hard-pressed that they had to deprive their executives. Standard of Indiana paid its chairman, John Swearingen, a $476,000 salary last year; Shell's president Harry Bridges collected $410,000.

Here are additional oil notes: Conoco, with $7 billion in oil sales last year, is also the nation's biggest seller of bituminous coal. Phillips, once run by an American Indian, now operates in 16 countries and is involved in the North Sea explorations.

Amerada Hess, a family firm run by Leon Hess, has boosted its profits an incredible 676 per cent since 1972. Getty Oil, owned by the aged playboy and art collector J. Paul Getty, has scored a 245 per cent profit increase since 1972.

TV 'caricature' of hunting criticized for editorial bias

Editor, The Record:

If the recent CBS caricature on hunting, "The Guns of Autumn," had been viewed only by hunters (people who can differentiate reality from half-truths and lies) the show would have been at best mildly interesting. Airing this biased representation of hunting to the non-hunting public is instead the most repugnant of all the swipes CBS has taken at the hunting and gun-owning citizens of America.

Examine some of what was depicted: The bear is depicted by CBS as a friendly creature who begs food from our hand at the neighborhood garbage dump. The assigning of "friendliness" or other human traits to a bear is a dangerously unrealistic editorial for a public medium to make. The wild bear has no such qualities.

After this initial lie we are led to believe that hunters typically shoot bears at the garbage dump, use radios, dogs, jeeps and masses of weaponry to track down bears in 10 or 15 minutes. That's all it takes on CBS anyway. Anyone who's trudged through laurel swamps all day without dogs, radios, jeeps, etc. knows that this display represents only a minority of hunters and is intended only to bias the general public against hunting.

We talk to an old man who blames the "lack of deer" on people who "shoot fawns and leave 'em lay." Is the opinion he offers factual, expert or knowledgeable? More bias.

The most repugnant of the whole sad show was the "shooting preserve" sequence. To the majority of hunters what was shown was not sport. Most would not engage in unfair chase, which is what CBS depicts. Also most hunters would not allow an animal to suffer needlessly to preserve meat or a set of antlers.

Both hunters and non-hunters should ask themselves what the purpose of CBS was when they aired this program. In the eyes of this hunter their purpose was only to stir anti-hunting sentiments in the general public by misrepresenting and propagandizing the sport. "The Guns of Autumn" is worthy of Pravda or Izvestia, not of an American public medium which is supposed to seek the truth.

Another criticism

Editor, The Record:

CBS News is responsible for irreparable damage being done to the reputation of responsible hunters and sportsman, on the program "The Guns Of Autumn."

Never, in 35 years as a hunter, have I seen a more disgusting, biased, staged presentation of what hunting is about. CBS has used every trick to show hunting in a bad light, just as they have in the past, (the polar bear hunt).

Their objective of making every viewing non-hunter into an anti-hunter has unscruplously been achieved. Not one subject presented was typical of the true hunting as pursued by millions of sportsmen.

"The Guns of Autumn" has shown the hunter as a kill-crazy moran, which I strongly resent. The average hunter is a law-abiding citizen, who loves the outdoors and the animals he hunts. He may have hunted for years and not fired a shot at a deer or seen a bear. He comes home with no game more often than not. He would much prefer to miss a shot than hit game that gets away.

A hunter is a conservation-minded individual who does more and spends more to help wildlife than all the so-called preservationists put together. He willingly pays an 11 per cent tax on sporting goods that helps to build wildlife refuges.

ELVIS RIDES AGAIN — Elvis Presley, released from a Memphis, Tenn. hospital, heads for an outing with a three 'funmobile' entourage from his Memphis home while a loyal fan rushes up for an autograph. (UPI)

After being all shook up, Elvis is feeling just fine

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Elvis Presley, resting at his home following two weeks of hospitalization for an enlarged colon and fatigue, is feeling fine. The King says so himself.

A photographer was at the gate of Presley's Graceland mansion when the singer rode out Sunday on a newly purchased funmobile — a three-wheeled vehicle powered by a small automobile engine.

"How are you feeling now, Elvis," the photographer asked, snapping pictures all the while.

"I'm feeling fine," said the entertainer, who usually avoids photographers and interviewers.

"You're looking real good," the photographer said.

Elvis nodded. "Thanks," he said.

"I guess you're glad to be back in Memphis a while," the photographer said.

"Sure am," Presley answered.

With that, the 40-year-old King of Rock and Roll smiled, waved and shot out onto Elvis Presley Boulevard on his funmobile. He was followed by Linda Thompson, a girlfriend, on a second three-wheeled vehicle and a cousin on a third.

Presley bought the three vehicles from Ron Elliott of Memphis before he left for a two-week engagement in Las Vegas last month. He canceled the show after three nights and flew home Aug. 21 to check into Baptist Hospital.

He was released from the hospital Sept. 5, but his personal physician, Dr. George Nicholas, said he will have to take it easy for about three months.

Vester Presley, an uncle of the singer who guards the Graceland gate, said the funmobile is just what Elvis needs.

"I like to see Elvis getting outdoors like this again," the uncle said. "He's been in and out on that thing a dozen times — running around the back streets on it."

"He needs all this fresh air — it's what he's needed for years," Vester Presley said. "He's got some nurses up there with him who don't want him to get outside and get tired out."

Vietnam clemency board end year-long operation

WASHINGTON — The Presidential Clemency Board, created a year ago to grant clemency to deserving Vietnam War resisters, went out of business Monday.

The 18-member board, which processed some 16,000 applications for President Ford's limited clemency program, held a full session on its final day to complete the processing of the last 100 cases, despite the Yom Kippur Jewish holiday that forced postponement of a scheduled meeting with Ford.

A spokeswoman for the board said, however, there will be a transition period of six weeks during which the last of the clerical work will be done by the Justice Department.

That involves paperwork for sending some 13,000 Clemency Board recommendations to Ford for review and signature. He has already signed some 2,400 clemency petitions.

The Clemency Board was one of three parts of the Ford program which sought to bridge the divisions of the Vietnam War by providing a means for those in legal jeopardy from either draft resistance or desertion of the military to work their way back into good standing in American society.

But from the beginning, the program was nearly as divisive as the war. Ford was criticized from his right for coddling the war opponents and from his left for demanding, as part of the clemency, that applicants to the program perform alternate service work before being granted the clemency pardon. In the end — after two extensions of time for applying to the program — it drew about 20 per cent of its potential applicants.

The Clemency Board, under the chairmanship of former Sen. Charles Goodell, R-N.Y., was set up to deal with both civilians and military personnel who had already been convicted. It received about 16,000 eligible applications from a pool of more than 100,000 potential applicants.

The Defense Department, which handled the cases of unconvicted deserters, estimated it received about 5,555 applications from a potential 10,115, while the Justice Department, which handled the cases of unconvicted Selective Service System violators, received 711 applications from 4,400 men facing indictment.

Book bombs injure two

LONDON (UPI) — Two bombs planted in hollowed out paperback books and mailed from Dublin exploded in London's fashionable Kensington and Mayfair districts Monday injuring the dowager Countess of Onslow and a woman secretary.

Pamela, Countess of Onslow, mother of the present Earl of Onslow, suffered minor burns on her arms when she opened a package containing a hollowed out Walt Disney Pinocchio book addressed to her home in Kensington.

The second bomb exploded in the Berkeley Square offices of the Canadian Alcan aluminum company when a secretary opened a packet containing a hollowed out book on marriage etiquette. The woman received minor cuts and burns.

Scotland Yard Special Branch and Army Intelligence officers sought to determine whether the bombs were the work of the Provisional Irish Republican Army or of some splinter group.

Lady Onslow was linked two years ago to self-styled British spies Kenneth and Keith Littlejohn, now serving jail terms in the Irish Republic for an armed bank robbery.

Lady Onslow, 60, met Keith Littlejohn in jail as a voluntary prison visitor. He told her his brother, Kenneth, had information about the sources of the Irish Republican Army's arms supplies.

During the Littlejohns' trial in Dublin in 1973, the British Defense Ministry said Lady Onslow had passed the information to the then Defense Minister Lord Carrington. But it denied that they had commissioned the services of the Littlejohn brothers in any capacity.

Nursing home assn. fears over-regulation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's largest nursing home federation has asked Congress to avoid "an overzealous approach" to fire safety in nursing homes, it was learned Monday.

In a growing disagreement over nursing home safety, the 7,800-member American Health Care Association and Sen. Frank E. Moss, D-Utah, have exchanged written arguments over fire deaths among elderly nursing home patients. The letters were released by AHCA.

"Sen. Moss, I know you share my feeling that fire safety standards must be carefully balanced with the overriding concern for the general well-being of residents in nursing homes," wrote Dr. Thomas G. Bell, AHCA executive vice president in a letter dated last Thursday.

"I am fearful that an overzealous approach to fire standards can actually diminish the quality of life for the people we serve by disrupting a comfortable environment," Bell said.

The disagreement began last week over a recent assertion by Moss' subcommittee on long-term care that "From a fire safety point of view, nursing homes continue to rank No. 1 on the list of unsafe places to live."

AHCA replied that "hospitals are three to four times as fireprone than are nursing homes."

Moss said this "bald assertion" that nursing homes are safer from fires than other structures cannot be supported by the evidence. He said the subcommittee would stick by its report. "I assure you we did not reach this conclusion lightly," he wrote to Bell.

Space agency chief speaks

'Spray can ban can wait'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The head of the federal space agency said Monday the nation can afford to wait for more information before acting to ban the use of spray can gases that may be damaging Earth's ozone radiation shield.

But Sen. Bob Packman, R-Ore., urged Congress to risk erring on the side of caution and move now to ban the fluorocarbon gases that some scientists fear may be destroying the 10-to 40-mile high ozone layer that screens out harmful ultraviolet radiation from the sun.

"I question how long we can await proof positive while risking the sizeable unforeseen impacts to our environment," Packwood told a Senate space sciences subcommittee.

In later testimony, Dr. James C. Fletcher, administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, and Dr. H. Guyford Stever, director of the National Science Foundation, said there is not yet sufficient scientific data to show that the fluorocarbon gases are significantly eroding the ozone layer.

"I do not believe any regulatory action should be taken now to change present practices involving the use of fluorocarbons," Stever said. "I think the answers will be developed in time..."

NASA is leading in efforts to obtain the stratospheric measurements needed and Fletcher said there should be enough information by the last half of 1977 to resolve the question.

"We, the nation and the world, could wait until January, 1978, without real danger to the ozone layer if the (restrictive) procedures were to be implemented by that date," he said in reply to questions from Sen. Dale Bumpers, D-Ark.

Packwood, whose home state already has enacted fluorocarbon restrictions, admitted that the concept of the gases destroying ozone is not a simple matter. But he said scientific reports have for the past several months "made the probability of ozone depletion more likely and closer to certain."

"I believe a judgment of caution should be made to control fluorocarbon emissions into the ambient air," he said. "Even if a ban were enforced today, the deleterious effects due to ozone depletion would continue for a decade, a decade of potential damage we cannot anticipate with certainty."

One-up personship?

'Personification' overdone

NEW YORK (UPI) — It was bound to happen when I wrote that the word chairperson irritated me and what was wrong with chairman anyway? Then I listed a batch of inanities and awkward phrases that would become part of our vocabulary if this "person"ification of our language continued. In other words, just consider what results from substituting person every time there is reference to man.

Now the letters are coming in reminding me of obvious ones I missed. And one writer points out also that if the liberationists opposing words using man and substituting person instead, why shouldn't the language be changed so that the amalgamation of "wo" with "men" for women be changed to "woperson"?

That way, the National Organization for Women, one of the biggest feminist groups, would become the National Organization for Wopersons.

The General Federation of Women's Clubs would become the General Federation of Wopersons' Clubs. And so on, ad infinitum.

A newsletter from Hood, Light and Geise, a marketing and advertising firm in Harrisburg, Pa., reminded that in the switch from man to person, I'd missed a lot of likely changes. It would become "woodperson spare that tree," and a famous speech would go, "Friends, Wopersons, Countrypersons, lend me your ears."

It would be "Fe, Fi, Fo, Fum, I smell the blood of an Englishperson". And the counting game children use would go, "Richperson, poorperson, beggarperson, thief ..."

It's that time again — to round up some suggestions to manufacturers on improving their products and packaging. They come from readers, personal experience and from a regular sampling of the 150,000 consumers who make up the panel of National Family Opinion, Inc., a market research firm.

They are called "Why don't they?" by their collectors.

My first one for supermarkets is why don't they enforce the eight or 10 items or less rule in the express checkout lane.

Some other "Why don't they?" candidates:

— Make pouring spouts for small grain cereals.

— Pack several types of snack crackers in one box, as some cheese varieties already are packaged.

— Make the opening marked "spoon" on spice and herb containers wide enough for a larger measuring spoon. Try dipping a tablespoon from some of the modern containers.

— Package soups and other canned goods for one serving, as they now package bread by half-loaf. There are many one-person (man, woman?) families where the large cans mean leftovers.

— Specify the amount of shortening and type used in packaged foods. People on low cholesterol or other special diets can't use some fats, and packages usually don't specify type of shortening used.

— Sell tiny packets of shortening, with contents just enough to grease a pan, maybe in a rub-on paper so cooking hands don't get tacky.

— Use preshrunk zippers and thread for sewing on all garments that are washable.

— Make plastic food bags in assorted colors, for easier identification both of size and contents.

— Eliminate the oversalting of canned foods. Many persons are on low sodium diets and others prefer to add salt if they wanted more.

— Include some basic recipes on the labels of unusual foods.

— Package brown sugar in cup-size packages so that the unused portion of the box doesn't harden if left unused for a spell. Cup-size packaging also would make measuring easier.

EER info helps public

By BRUCE KOON
Dow Jones-Offaway News
Under a voluntary federal energy-conservation program, some manufacturers last year began telling consumers how much energy their room air conditioners, refrigerators, freezers, and combination refrigerator-freezers use. Television sets and water heaters recently were added to the list.

Now the Federal Trade Commission wants to make the energy consumption of room air conditioners mandatory information.

The proposed rule would require disclosures of an air conditioner's energy efficiency ratio (EER) as determined by a commission formula. The ratio would aid consumers in calculating the cost of operating the appliance (New York City adopted a similar rule in 1973).

The public is invited to comment on the proposal by writing the Special Assistant Director for Rule Making, Federal Trade Commission, Washington, D.C. 20580. Copies of the proposed rule can be obtained from the Division of Legal and Public Records, Room 130, at the same address.

Antifreeze
Automobile antifreeze has returned to the market in a big way. Some discount stores are selling it in the vicinity of $3.50 a gallon. That's less than half of what antifreeze cost in many places last year, when a shortage sent prices soaring.

Coffee prices
Coffee could become more expensive next year, the U.S. Department of Agriculture estimates that Brazil's 1976-77 coffee crop could be off by more than 50 per cent because of a disastrous frost this summer. Although there will be enough coffee this year, the Department of Agriculture predicts a tighter world supply by next September.

STP oil
Every car does not need STP oil treatment, according to the Federal Trade Commission, which has ordered the STP Corp. to stop suggesting in its advertising that every car does.

Under the FTC order, STP Corp. advertisements will not assert that its oil-treatment product will protect all cars against friction and wear, allow cars to start easier in cold weather, sand prevent cars from breaking down or requiring engine repairs.

Fuel savings
Are energy-saving home improvements worth your money? The U.S. Department of Commerce has a booklet to help homeowners answer that question. "Making the Most of Your Energy Dollars in Home Heating and Cooling" has climatic maps, charts, tables, worksheets, and a sample case to help you decide whether to invest in added insulation, weatherstripping and such.

The 16-page booklet helps you figure a combination of improvements that should yield the greatest long-run savings on fuel bills. For a copy,

"A Handbook on Stuttering" is available in an updated 1975 edition. The 404-page paperback by Dr. Oliver Bloodstein, a Brooklyn College professor, has material that may benefit both parents and teachers of stutterers.

The book outlines research, causes, and other sources of information about stuttering. Copies may be ordered for $4 from the National Easter Seal Society, 20232 Ogden Ave., Chicago 60612.

Baggage tags
Airline passengers will have to tag their bags starting Sept. 21. Under an agreement approved by the Civil Aeronautics Board, U.S. airlines will stop checking baggage unless passengers' names are firmly affixed to bag exteriors.

Airlines will provide free baggage identification labels, says the Air Transport Association. It expects that tagging will speed up tracing of lost luggage and reduce the number of passengers who accidentally claim wrong bags.

Kilowatt Hours explained

MRS. DAWN OLSON
Extension Home Economist
Refrigerators and freezers use less than 1 per cent of the nation's energy total, but within the home they are the third largest user of electricity. Almost all U.S. homes have a refrigerator or combination unit and 30 per cent have freezers.

Since April 1, 1975, some manufacturers are providing the average monthly Kilowatt Hour (Kwh) for the consumer's information. To help you better understand this, here is some background of electrical terms relating to units of measure.

Ampere — the rate of current flow

Volt — the electrical pressure necessary for current flow

Watt — the working unit of electrical power used by the appliance	Kilowatt — equal to 1000 watts

Kilowatt hour — a thousand watts of electricity used in 1 hour
Horse Power — equal to 1000 watts or 1 kilowatt
Most name plates on appliances list the power requirements or voltage, amperes, and-or wattage. If the amperes are given instead of the wattage, multiply amperes by volts to get the wattage.
AMPERES X VOLTS TOTALS WATTS. WATTS DIVIDE 1000 TOTALS KILO-WATTS
The average (estimated) hours the appliance operates a
Freezer	Avg. wattage
Manual defrost	341
Frostless	440

day is multiplied by the kilowatts (Kw) to get the Kilowatt hours (Kwh) used. The kilowatt hours used in a month or year multiplied by the average local utility rate (which you must obtain from your utility company) gives the operating cost.

For example, a 15 cubic foot freezer with conventional or manual defrost averaging 1,195 Kwh per year at three cents a Kwh costs $35.85 to operate. This figure then might be used to compare with the operating costs of a frostless freezer of the same size or another make.

Average Kwh will also vary according to size of the unit. A family may also vary from the average figures arrived at in laboratory tests on those estimated. A large family, for example, open a refrigerator or freezer more often.

However, average or standard Kwh's are useful for making basic comparisons and the additional voluntary information on appliance labels can be most helpful to consumers.

Sihanouk returns — but not to rule

By WILBUR G. LANDREY
UPI Foreign Editor

Sitting in his elegant living room in Peking, Prince Norodom Sihanouk used to tell visitors, his voice squeaking up with excitement, that the Communists in Cambodia might well eliminate him after they defeated the American aggressors.

That is what he told three of us who interviewed him in 1972 and what he has said many times since.

He was working with the Communists for the liberation of his country, Sihanouk said. But he had no love for the Khmer Rouge nor they for Sihanouk.

It is no wonder since he once sentenced to death three of the shadowy leaders who have been running Cambodia since the Khmer Rouge marched into Phnom Penh on April 17.

This past week Sihanouk went back after five years of exile, back to a city said to have been emptied of 2 to 3 million inhabitants when the still almost faceless men took over.

He went back to a welcome by crowds which Phnom Penh radio said included "people, soldiers of the revolutionary army, members of the government." He went back with his title of chief of state. One of the men he sentenced to death in the 1960s accompanied him. Another was among the greeters at the airport.

But Sihanouk almost certainly did not return to rule.

The future of the mercurial, engaging little man is almost as murky as ever. And so is the real state of affairs inside of Cambodia. The first foreigner known to have been admitted to the country since the Communist takeover—Chinese Ambassador Son Hau—was with Sihanouk aboard the special China Airlines jet from Peking.

There is a sketchy Cambodian version of events inside the country to go with the tales of death and forced marches brought out by escaping refugees.

Ieng Sary, a Cambodian deputy premier who attended the United Nations session in New York recently, is reported to have told a group of Cambodians here that the evacuation of Phnom Penh's population was carried out because of lack of food and completed in one week without bloodshed.

He also claimed that the Cambodian gunboats which seized the American container ship Mayaguez last May 12 acted without the knowledge of Phnom Penh. The United States carried out an unnecessary "bloodbath" by attacking while the release of ship and crew was being arranged, Sary charged.

On some occasions, Sihanouk has said that he expects to stay in Cambodia only one month a year. He has said he would be a purely titular head of state with no active political role. He has said he would journey to New York to address the United Nations.

In the Chinese capital, Sihanouk lived in a luxurious residence and was treated with deference. Now ailing Prime Minister Chou En-lai often greeted him when he returned from trips to the Chinese countryside or abroad. His farewells were warm.

As hereditary Samdech, Sihanouk is revered by many, especially the peasants of the Cambodian countryside. There can be only speculation about the long delay in his return to Cambodia as well as about his future.

Until Cambodia opens its doors, there can be little more than that about what is happening there either.

Sihanouk once said, predicting an inevitable later clash: "I am a very independent man."

Two of the world's more intractable conflicts have been in the news during the past week, conflicts compounded of religion and fear, prejudice and economic discrimination.

The more hopeless is in Northern Ireland, where more than 1,300 persons have died in the past six years of communal fighting between the majority Protestants who look for their identity across the Irish sea to Britain and the minority Roman Catholics who look south across the border to the Irish Republic.

This week Protestant leaders in Northern Ireland voted overwhelmingly against sharing power with the Roman Catholics and voted for the adjournment of a constitutional convention.

The second conflict is just as bloody but not so hopeless. It is in Lebanon, that small country at the eastern bend of the Mediterranean which in the best of times likes to consider itself as a Middle Eastern haven. In the worst of times it is a battleground between its Christian and Moslem populations.

At least 2,500 persons have been killed or wounded in four rounds of fighting this year—the tolls are tenuous. The latest fighting is in and around the northern port city of Tripoli.

The Lebanese system divides power between the religious communities on a ratio of six to five in favor of the Christians on the basis of an old and now disputed census.

This year again the system has appeared near to collapsing into civil war.

OBSTINATE: (Q.) I am going with Gary. He has a problem. It is drugs. He knows he has a problem. So do his parents and the authorities. But he won't listen to anyone. I don't even try talking to him about his problem because I don't think it would help. Now this puts me in a spot.

Should I break up with him before he gets worse or should I stick it out? —

Not Much Hope in New York

(A.) How do you know Gary won't listen to you if you talk to him about drugs? You haven't tried. He may listen to you even though he hasn't listened to others.

Tell him how you feel. Do it quietly and without "preaching" to him. He may react positively. If he doesn't, and if you are then convinced that there is no chance of his turning around, do not stick to him out of some mistaken sense of "loyalty." Let him go down, but don't go down with him.

REVENGE: (Q.) Three weeks ago my parents found out that Larry and I were making love. Since then they have kept us apart and are trying to get him convicted of statutory rape. They want him behind bars.

I love him deeply and am willing to compromise with them if they will just drop the charges. The charges are false. He did not rape me. I made love with him because I wanted to. They seem to be seeking some sort of revenge.

I do not want to have a part in ruining Larry. Please help me. I am 18 and he is 20. We are engaged. —

Suffering in Pennsylvania

(A.) You are an adult. So is Larry. You are engaged. Marriage normally follows engagement. This is not endorsing what you have done. Rather it is pointing out a constructive solution.

Lisbon political quagmire

Confusion in the sun

LISBON, Portugal, (UPI) — The downtown Lisbon crowd clusters around a little old lady in black. She is a Maoist, proudly holding forth on political theory for the benefit of anyone who cares to listen.

A bearded, heavy-set young man stands diffidently behind a table as people stop to look over his wide selection of revolutionary buttons and pins. He has Communist party buttons, Lenin pins, Mao pins, Popular Democratic party buttons, Socialist pins ... everything.

At a rally for Communist youth, a dozen slightly intimidated eight-year-olds in red berets approach the microphones to sing revolutionary songs for several thousand oldsters, who applaud vigorously.

Arriving in revolutionary Lisbon is like suddenly finding yourself in the jungle unable to tell what time of day it is. It is a mixture of sunshine, dark drama and confusion.

Everywhere posters and graffiti warn the people to be vigilant against counter-revolutionary forces, praise the bond between the people and the armed forces and ridicule the Byzantine intrigues of Portuguese politics.

Most political rallies provide peaceful opportunities for people to get together, chant slogans and collectively vent their spleens.

But the peaceful assemblage can suddenly turn into an angry mob. So there are the inevitable soldiers with their automatic weapons and armored cars.

Portugal's heavy political machinations are always partially lightened by the cheery Lisbon weather — large dollops of sunshine and cool breezes in a jewel-like Atlantic setting.

It is a city of beautiful squares, sidewalk cafes, tree-lined boulevards, narrow winding streets and lovely green parks. The venerable battlements of St. George Castle, dating from Roman times, hulk over the city on the highest of its seven hills. The alternating blue and tawny Tagus River slips past to the sea.

In Rossio Square people meet for gossip and political talk. Here the newspapers first hit the streets and the sidewalk cafes overflow with young Socialists and Communists from all over Europe, thrill-seeking tourists and foreign journalists.

But in the rest of the country, hoteliers and tourist businesses feel the combined pinch of a worsening economic situation and a political crisis which has caused many foreigners to pass up Portugal's beautiful beaches and resort towns.

An American woman flying into Lisbon from New York typified the attitude when she told her neighbor on the plane, "I'm glad to see someone else is going there."

Food and drink are excellent — jumbo shrimp and crayfish fried in oil and garlic, steamed whelks whose tender meat is extracted with exotic implements and dipped in butter, braised pork garnished with clams and fine herbs, delicious veal, chicken and beef dishes, crisp vegetables and rivers of delectable chilled wine.

And though prices rise rapidly, the cuisine remains relatively inexpensive by American and North European standards.

Lisbon has its revolutionary camp followers. They sell not only pins, but revolutionary posters, mugs, glasses, brandy sniffers, lighters, pocket knives, key chains and jewelry. And pornography salesmen frequent nearly every downtown street corner.

Hotel clerks and cleaning ladies worry about the possibility of civil war in Portugal, but the thought is somehow jarring when faced with the seemingly peaceful natures of most Portuguese.

DIRECT DEPOSIT OF SOCIAL SECURITY CHECKS

Facts you should consider

- It's safe
- It's Sure
- It's Convenient

- It's Helpful
- It's FREE
- It's Easy

- It's Time Saving

1 Why is there so much interest today in the direct deposit of social security checks?

The Treasury Department has initiated a program to encourage the recipients of all recurring Federal payments to deposit these directly into a financial institution. Under this plan, an individual can have his check sent directly to his financial institution for deposit.

2 How will I benefit from direct deposit of my social security check?

It saves a special trip to the bank just to deposit your check. It eliminates worry about the check being lost or stolen in the mail. And, any time you are away from home or cannot come to the bank, your check is automatically deposited for you.

3 Can I have it deposited to my savings account as well as my checking account?

If you want a portion to go into the savings each month, ask your bank about an automatic transfer of a specified amount each month from checking into savings. By law your Social Security check must be directed to one specific account, either checking or savings.

4 How do I sign up for this service?

Simply complete the government form SF1199 available at any bank. Personnel at your commercial bank will be glad to help you complete the form.

5 How do I get the information needed to complete the forms?

All the Social Security information you will need is on your monthly check or in your initial awards letter from Social Security. If you need any assistance or have any questions, your bank will be glad to assist you.

6 Do I send the form directly to social security?

No, you should complete the top half of the form only and take it or mail it to your bank. They will complete the form, sending one copy to you and one to Social Security.

7 After I sign up, when will the bank start receiving my check?

It should take about a month for the form to be processed. At the start of the program, it could take slightly longer.

8 What about terminating the direct deposit program?

Simply contact the Social Security office and request that they start sending the checks directly to you. Also notify your bank.

9 Is there any charge for this service?

No, it is a completely free service of your local bank.

10 What if the amount of my check changes?

The correct amount of your check will be deposited each month.

11 I get payments from both the social security and supplemental income. Do I have to fill out two forms?

Yes, a separate form is necessary for each check you receive.

12 My spouse and I receive a check jointly. Can we use direct deposit?

Yes, just so the account in which it is deposited is in both your names.

13 Can I deposit my check directly to my spouse's account?

No, the account to which your check is deposited must carry your name.

14 Can my minor children's checks be deposited to my checking account?

If the checks carry your name as representative payee, they may be deposited to your checking account. If you wish to deposit these funds to a savings account, you must have a separate account for each child.

Your Horoscope

ARIES (March 21 to April 20) — If you expect too much, day may prove disappointing. Keeping objectives within reasonable bounds, however — and working toward them only — is your winning ticket.

TAURUS (April 21 to May 21) — Curb tendencies toward lethargy. Sidestepping obligations and trying to bluff your way through could have unfortunate results.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21) — Opposition to your ideas could cause some indecisiveness but, if you're sure you're on the right track, go ahead as planned.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23) — Straying off the beaten path not advisable. You'll find more opportunities, greater satisfaction in activities close to home.

LEO (July 24 to August 23) — A creative idea could prove more remunerative than you supposed. Fine gains indicated if you play your cards right.

VIRGO (August 24 to September 23) — Indications are that a bit of luck is coming your way. Take a chance — especially in an activity that particularly interests you.

LIBRA (September 24 to October 23) — This looks like one of your better days. You should be the center of attraction in whatever circle you find yourself — business or pleasure.

SCORPIO (October 24 to November 23) — It will pay you to look below the surface now. New trends may result in an agreement where there was only opposition before.

SAGITTARIUS (November 23 to December 21) — Jupiter influences not too friendly. Avoid getting in over your head — especially where you happen to be on unfamiliar ground.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to Jan. 20) — A favorable day for negotiations, working toward contract settlements. Parties of the second part now appreciate what you have to offer.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19) — Mixed influences. Stay out of speculative ventures and be exceptionally careful in dealings with the opposite sex.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20) — The Piscean tendency to seek the unusual and offbeat will be much in evidence now. You'll find much pleasure in areas others overlook.

YOU BORN TODAY are a scholar at heart, ceaseless in a quest for knowledge and a whiz at imparting your learning to others. You would make an educator par excellence or, along similar lines, an outstanding lecturer. You have a great love of nature and all things related to the earth; could shine as a botanist, agriculturist or geologist.

Opening lead — king of hearts.

There is nothing wrong with misleading your partner on defense if it serves a worthwhile purpose. When your only chance of stopping a contract is to persuade your partner that a condition exists which actually does not, you must do so even though he may later berate you for deceiving him.

Take this deal where East has a crucial defensive role to play. West leads the king of hearts and — judging from the bidding and what he sees in dummy — East can reasonably deduce that with routine defense declarer will lose two heart tricks and nothing else.

East realizes that his king of diamonds is subject to capture if South is permitted to lead trumps twice from dummy and so trap the king.

To stop this from happening, East plays the seven of hearts on the king and, when West continues with the ace, the six — thus completing a high-low signal, ostensibly showing a doubleton. This intentional misrepresentation of his heart holding is designed to persuade West that East started with only two hearts.

East's play proves effective when West obediently plays a third round of hearts, forcing dummy to ruff. East follows suit, of course — to his partner's surprise — but his king of diamonds is now sure to score the setting trick. There is nothing South can do to trap the king with only one trump lead from dummy now available.

Note that if East plays his hearts normally — West may take it into his head to discontinue hearts and play another suit. If he does, South will have no trouble taking the rest of the tricks to make the contract.

Practical man's view of terminal illness

NEW YORK (UPI) — "I start the day feeling it's great to be alive," says Orville E. Kelly. "It would be ridiculous to say everything goes perfectly."

"But it's a day. I don't take it for granted anymore."

Kelly, 45, of Burlington, Iowa has terminal lymphatic cancer and is the founder of a movement, now national in scope, called "Make Today Count."

"I have my up days and my down days," he said. "But I have the choice. Give up and die or work with the doctors and live longer."

Kelly, a former newspaper editor, is so basic about his illness, technically called lymphocytic lymphoma, that at first you're caught off guard.

How can a man who's six feet tall, 235 pounds, do weight lifting, arm wrestling, gardening and look out over "my river" (the Mississippi) be a man also under a death sentence?

How can such a man look on the future with a fine sense of humor? "I hear all the time," he said, "that 'You don't look like a patient.' One woman said

I looked better than her husband and he only had asthma."

"Somewhere in the mail, there was a letter addressed to me, but with the notation, 'If Mr. Kelly is dead, send it to the nearest member.' I guess she didn't want to waste a stamp."

And ask, how can a man taking care of his wife and four children, ages 5, 10, 13, and 15, turn his own perspective around, defy the prognosis, and launch the live-giving movement which is the essence of his first book.

The book, "Make Today

Count", with Randall Becker (Delacorte Press, New York) details the story of his illness and foundation of the organization to help the terminally ill and their families.

Initiated in January, 1974, "Make Today Count" has 43 chapters, more in the works to bring the total soon to more than 60. It also prints a newsletter. Chapters are in the Midwest, South and on the East and West coasts.

"I have no idea how many we reach," said Kelly. "But we've received more than 23,000 letters." Chapters have regular meetings and typically, he said, an informal talk-it-over session would be about 50 per cent patients and their families, the others doctors, nurses, ministers, social workers.

Kelly uses the term "life threatening" disease, simply because other terminal illnesses are discussed. One Iowa chapter, he said, has a minister who's had open heart surgery and the doctors say his life span is limited. But about 97 per cent of the ill are cancerous.

I talked with Kelly when he visited New York as part of his national tour to talk about the book and to encourage people to talk about illness. "If it is cancer, call it cancer," he said. "Don't try to make life normal again by trying to hide what is wrong."

"Cancer is second only to heart and allied diseases as the national killer. It will take an estimated 365,000 lives this year. Yet an estimated 100,000 could be saved by early detection. I'm amazed at the number of people who will put off going to a doctor for fear it is cancer."

"Cancer has become a dirty word, because we don't know all the causes. It is a lingering, pain-filled thing for weeks, months, maybe years of illness."

"Yet after all the research, we still don't know what starts that one cell wild ..."

Kelly, born in Columbus Junction, Iowa, was in the army for a number of years, serving in Korea, Japan, and France. After the army, he worked as reporter, city editor and editor of dailies and weeklies in Sterling and Aledo, Ill.

He learned in June 1973 that he had incurable cancer. After the struggle first to tell the family — "They knew something was wrong, but I didn't mention it for three months" — and his early thoughts of suicide — "Get it over with" — he realized that he was murdering the few years left of his life. He set about helping others in crisis — "We care about each other."

Control of his cancer is through chemotherapy, which means massive doses either orally or intravenously of prednisone, vinchristine, and cytoxan. He will not speculate on his life span — "no one knows when he will die. I've fooled my doctors so often..."

"I can live with the fear of death," he said. "I'm sure that I would be dead now if I hadn't started this 'Make Today Count.' I've made 330 appearances in the last year and a half."

The message of his life is manifold — "Things like 'This is God's will' turned me off," he said. "I used to make promises (traveling by air) that if I got there safely, I'd do this and that for God."

"I no longer bargain with God. I can feel close to Him now all the time, more than I ever used to. I don't believe faith is just going to church..."

"I now have to think after death, and I don't know..."

"I believe that if everyone who died could come back, a lot more of 'I love you' would be said before, not the flowers after."

"The worries that used to plague me and my family are past, less significant. When it used to take my wife (Wanda), and me half an hour to get around to discussing something, now we say, 'What do you think?' We make time count."

"Wanda prays for a miracle ... the great breakthrough in cancer cure. The miracle to me is that I am here."

Orville Kelly is at work on a second book, a sort of diary of seven typical days.

And miracles DO happen.

Sex test

Dear Ann: Teenagers have changed since you printed the "Know Thyself Sex Test" in 1973. Here is an updated test composed by four teenagers. Sign us 53-50-34-72 in Cleveland. Ever been out with a member of the opposite sex? 2. Ever engaged in light making-out? 2. Ever gotten or given a hickey? 2. Ever said "I love you"? 3. Ever made a member of the opposite sex cry? 3. Has a member of the opposite sex ever made you cry? 3. Ever had heavy sexual relations? 5. Ever masturbate? 5. Ever engaged in sex even though you didn't want to but decided "why not"? 7. lenient. I'd rate anything above 28 "In Trouble." Furthermore, your questions mix behavior that is a normal part of growing up with some really far-out stuff — such as hard drugs. I don't dig it.

Dear Ann Landers: I recently married a divorced man who has three young children. He tried to get custody but his wife fought it in court and won. The divorce laws in this country are a disgrace. Unless a woman is a prostitute or a dope addict she can keep her children even though the father is the superior parent.

My problem is this: What should his children call me? The oldest one is ten, the youngest five. I prefer my first name. My husband says it's not respectful and has suggested "Aunt May" or "Mama May." What's your preference?

Stumped

Dear Stumped: You aren't their aunt, so scratch that one. "Mama May" is all right if they want to, so why not leave it to them? I'd opt for May if I were you.

CONFIDENTIAL to Finished: Don't label yourself "finished" until you've given Recovery, Inc., a try. They're in the phone book, free, and have had remarkable success with people who are depressed and emotionally unsure of themselves.

How to set up your own pension fund with tax-deductible dollars.

If you're not already covered by a pension plan where you work, a new Federal law makes it possible for you to save money for your retirement and deduct the savings from your taxable income now.

Here's how to do it:

At Northeastern Bank, we've established a new kind of savings plan, the Individual Retirement Account (IRA). By having your own IRA, you can set aside $1500 a year (or 15% of salary, whichever is smaller) and not pay a penny of taxes on it until you retire.

Your IRA at Northeastern Bank will earn high interest, and that won't be taxable until retirement either, when your tax bracket will probably be lower.

Right now, you will earn 6½% on your IRA account. And we pay that high rate right from the start. (The interest rate is subject to market conditions and bank regulations.) You will pay no fee or commission on your IRA account.

A Northeastern Bank IRA plan is a great idea. It saves your money three ways — with the money you set aside, the money you save in taxes, and the interest your Northeastern account earns.

Come in to any of Northeastern Bank's nearby offices or mail the coupon below for a free booklet that will tell you more about how you can set up your own pension fund with an IRA.

S-burg store's door swings the wrong way

EAST STROUDSBURG — A Stroudsburg photographer was ordered to replace the swinging door to his business because the door opened in instead of out.

District Magistrate Graden Praetorius said he ordered Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Levy to replace the door on Lawrence Studio, 526 Main St., Stroudsburg.

The Levys were told to make arrangements with a contractor within 15 days to have the door replaced.

Praetorius said he didn't accept the Levys' reasoning that they shouldn't have to make the change because the door opened over some steps and could possibly knock someone off the steps.

Codes officer Stanley Melvin said the decision wasn't a precedent and added all other establishments so far have complied by correcting doors.

Melvin explained that if a door existed before the ordinance was enacted and didn't pose a threat to the public, it wouldn't have to be replaced.

With the help of Pocono hotel, resort and recreational facility owners, program coordinator T. Lawrence Ray has come up with two four-year scholarships. The two $6,000 grants are expected to be available by fall 1976.

Ray, coordinator of the college's Institute of Leadership and management, said what makes the program exciting is the college's location in a resort area, a working laboratory for its students.

"The feeling is we can have the best school in the world here," Ray said. "We have a $300 million laboratory out here. We can place interns. The people in the area identify with the school (ESSC)."

The program is one of three accounting and management programs the institute offers and meshes with the college's new philosophy of cooperating with the community.

The program consists of five core courses that lead to specialization in five fields: front office management, food and beverage management, sales management, financial management and resort recreation management.

As Ray explains the program, professors at ESSC asked hotel and resort managers how they moved into their high-level positions and build the program from those answers.

Ray said a front office manager might rise from night manager to the person in charge of all rooms and personnel for one motel in a large chain.

A person trained as a food and beverage management might open a restaurant or a chain of restaurants, he said. An ESSC student trained in sales would book large conventions, which are increasingly becoming moneymakers for the resorts, Ray continued.

Financial managers rise from night auditors to controllers of large firms, and recreation managers may run anything from a ski resort to a golf course, he added.

While students take the five core courses, they major in English (for sales) or physical education (for resort recreation management).

The key to the program is the internship, where ESSC students work in area resorts, Ray said.

READ THIS LABEL CAREFULLY

Then...

If you ever need a new electric water heater... insist on one worthy of wearing this label. It is placed on installed water heaters that qualify as low-wattage units. (That's heating elements of 2500 watts or less.)

The advantage is you can go to a larger tank... have all the hot water your family will normally ever need... and, in the long run, still use less electricity than a water heater commonly referred to as a quick recovery type.

In these days of rising energy costs, that's good to know!

An Energy Saving Message From PP&L

Bangor board releases proposals, teachers claim foul

By JEFF WIDMER
Pocono Record Reporter
BANGOR — Representatives of the Bangor Area School Board, saying they no longer know what teachers want, Monday released details of a package the teachers rejected Sunday.

Fred Bartosh, president of the 167-member Bangor Area Education Assn. (BAEA), characterized the release as "evidence the board has no sincerity in dealing with us." He accused the board of trying to force teachers to accept that package only.

Meanwhile, negotiators for the board and BAEA continued to bargain into the night Monday in an attempt to settle the work stoppage, which enters its 14th day today.

About 150 teachers rejected a board proposal drafted Sept. 9 during more than seven hours of negotiations. According to a statement released by board solicitor Donald F. Spry II, the board has agreed to accept a two-year rather than one-year contract. The board also agreed to schedule 182 days of instruction, "which in effect provides the teachers with pay for two more days of school than is required by Pennsylvania law," the statement read.

The board agreed to a seven-hour, 30-minute work day — from 8 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. — with the provision teachers give 40 free hours a year for faculty and other meetings.

Length of work day was not written into the last contract. Teachers wanted the day to end at 3:20 p.m., but the board felt it could not afford to pay overtime for faculty meetings.

The board offered a $1,000 per teacher raise for the 1975-76 school year and a $1,050 increase for the 76-77 school year. "In addition, a 15th step in the salary schedule of $150 per teacher would be incorporated into the 1975-76 contract," according to the statement.

That meant teachers would have started at $9,450 this year, instead of $8,450 as they did last year.

Bartosh called that arrangement "ridiculous." He said both a teacher who taught at $8,450 last year and a beginning teacher this year would receive the same $9,450 salary this year.

"It means you have no reward for having spent time in Bangor,"

He said 40 teachers would be eligible for the 15th step of a salary schedule, but going by the board's offer, they and the other teachers "will still be the lowest paid and still have the fewest benefits and be accepting the worst offer in the entire county this year."

According to the board's statement, it offered to pay half an employee dental plan "which shall not exceed $25 per employee during the contract year 1975-76 and not to exceed $51 per employee during the contract year 1976-77."

Bartosh said that amounts to 15 cents a day this year and called it inadequate.

The board said the package will cost $200,000 — for 1975-76, of which $172,425 is for salaries. During the second year, salaries would increase another $175,350.

"The board considers the offer to be fair and reasonable when the tax base of the Bangor district is considered."

"The district now is faced with increased costs of items which were negotiated in previous contracts, especially a $35,902 additional cost for Blue Cross-Blue Shield coverage for the teacher and family."

Bartosh said the board, when its offer is compared with a 1975-76 budget of $5.5 million, "is playing nickle and dime games."

He said teachers will not go back to work under the old contract until a settlement is reached — a plan suggested by chief board negotiator Clarence Overfield. "The board of education won't deal without a contract. What's going to make them deal if we go back to work under the old one?"

He said the board, by making the package public, does not intend to modify its offer any further.

Overfield disagreed. "The public is entitled to know exactly what the board offered and what the teachers rejected. They're paying for it." He said the board is "not locked in" on the last offer.

In addition to the major items, the board offered five other items. As outlined by the board's statement, they include: an offer to pay for half the cost of graduate credits teachers take at any college or university; maternity leave provisions; two unrestricted personal days at regular pay; $10 a day for each day of accumulated sick leave, up to 128 days, and pay for each unused personal day upon retiring at a rate paid to substitute teachers.

Second Pike bank robber pleads guilty in court

Pike County Bureau
MILFORD — Jeffrey Hennings, 20, of Lake Ariel R.D. 2, one of two suspects in a Pike County bank robbery, pleaded guilty Monday in Pike County Court.

In court proceedings before Judge Arlington Williams, Hennings joined Gerald Stanton, 20, of Lake Ariel R.D. 4 and pleaded guilty to robbing $11,349 from the Wallenpaupack Branch of the First National Bank of Pike County. Stanton pleaded guilty to robbing the bank last week.

The two men, wearing masks and wielding sawed-off shotguns, robbed the Wallenpaupack branch bank April 29 and were caught several days later.

District Attorney Harold Thomson, Jr., said the $11,349 still has not been recovered. He said Stanton has been released on bail, while Hennings is lodged in the Pike County Jail with bail set at $40,000.

There was no date set for sentencing of the two men.

In other court action, Judge Williams heard guilty pleas from three persons.

— J.J. Piume, developer of Pocono Mountain Lake Estates, pleaded guilty to two counts of harassment and was fined $300 and court costs. Piume was charged with attempting to assault two of his salesmen, Alden Pagnoni and Zygmunt Soszynski.

— Joseph Strus, Jr., of Dover, N.J., pleaded guilty to leaving the scene of an accident on July 20.

— Arthur Gamble of Brooklyn, N.Y., pleaded guilty to driving under the influence of alcohol. Gamble was fined $300 plus costs.

According to Thomson, a final case in court involved an assault charge against Ronald Pellick of Milford. Pellick did not show up for the hearing, forcing Judge Williams to issue a bench warrant, Thomson said.

New York man dies from wreck

ALLENTOWN — A New York man died in Allentown Hospital Monday from head injuries suffered in a one car accident early Sunday near Canadensis.

Dead is Roger A. DeForest, 19, of Unadilla, N.Y.

According to Barrett Township Police Chief Robert LaBar, DeForest died at 3:25 p.m. Monday, about 36 hours after the accident.

Also treated for injuries sustained in the one-car crash were Claude Mason, 18, of Bethlehem, James Rundle, 18, of Glens Falls, N. Y., and Winfred Hughes, 23, of Allentown.

Housing money plea review set

STROUDSBURG — A request for $163,000 made by the Monroe County Redevelopment Authority to create housing in Tobyhanna Township will be reviewed Thursday by the Economic Development Council of Northeastern Pennsylvania in Avoca.

The grant, entitled discretionary funds, is to be used to acquire land for a housing development, to rehabilitate substandard units and demolish unsafe vacant houses.

A month ago, county commission gave the redevelopment authority permission to apply for the funding. There is only $163,000 available and Monroe County is seeking all of it.

The commissioners said Monday that William Blackburn, authority director, or someone from his office, will attend Thursday's session of the EDC to answer any questions pertaining to the application.

In other business Monday, the commissioners said the state Department of Public Welfare is reviewing bills to the county from Stroud Manor for keeping patients there during 1972-73.

The state is to determine how much money is reimbursable and then send the county a check. The commissioners said Monday they don't know how much money the county might get but Commissioner Mrs. Nancy B. Shukaitis has stated in the past the amount should exceed $100,000.

The county is depending on a sizable amount to help offset a deficit of more than $200,000 incurred through a delay in the transfer of Pleasant Valley Manor to a non-profit corporation.

Mrs. Shukaitis said Monday once the bills are approved by the welfare department, they will go to the state auditor general for review before the county receives any money.

The county maintains the money is due from past years when application for state reimbursement was not made for Stroud Manor.

In other matters, the commissioners approved giving the Monroe County Firemen's Association their 1975 allocation of $2,500 and approved spending $442 on training manuals for a civil defense Emergency Medical Training Program to begin in October.

The commissioners also directed the county planning commission to review a report on the Lower Brodhead Watershed which stated flood control dams were not economically feasible. The planners are to recommend whether the county should pursue the matter.

The resignation of Josephine Uklenowich as inspector of elections for Stroudsburg's Fourth Ward was accepted but no replacement was named.

The commissioners noted that Gov. Milton Shapp will be at Lake Naomi Wednesday to unveil a model of the Pocono Arts Center.

Rte. 209 relocation parley set

STROUDSBURG — Local officials will be given a chance to voice their concerns over relocation of Rte. 209 in Monroe County when they meet with representatives of the Pennsylvania Department of Transportation (PennDOT) on Tuesday, Sept. 30 in the Stroud Township Municipal Building.

The meeting is one of the first steps in getting the two-lane highway relocated and expanded to four lanes. A public meeting which will seek input from residents will be scheduled for early November, according to Robert Jones, location engineer for PennDOT's district five.

Even with planning already underway, Jones said it will be several years before construction will begin. Should PennDOT decide to relocate the highway.

Jones said comments received from this month's meeting and from the November meeting will be considered when PennDOT studies the alternatives of relocating the present route.

One of the alternatives under consideration is no relocation at all, Jones added.

Other alternatives include building a highway from the Pike County line to Interstate 80 in Bartonsville or from Pike County to I-80 in Minisink Hills.

Jones explained the cost of the relocation would depend on the alternative selected.

Jones said PennDOT scheduled the meeting with officials from municipalities involved with the relocation to learn if any of the townships are planning changes which might influence the relocation.

EAST STROUDSBURG — Dr. Lester J. Bowers, dean of the faculty of education at East Stroudsburg State College, officially began duties this September as President of the Pennsylvania Association of Teacher Educators.

Planner applicants narrowed to six

STROUDSBURG — The personnel committee of the county planning commission may begin interviews for a planning administrator this week.

Robert MacMillan told the commission that the number of applicants for the job had been narrowed to six.

The committee listed eight areas it felt were important and rated each candidate on a scale of one to five in each area.

He said the rates may change, depending on the interviews, which may begin sometime this week.

The eight topics are certified planner in the state, academic qualifications, experience, ability to get state and federal funding.

Also, experience or appreciation of rural and recreational areas, Pennsylvania background, ability to work with people and salary.

MacMillan said one candidate may have eliminated himself when he learns of the salary.

The position has been vacant since March when Douglas Williams resigned his $13,656 a year post to run for county commissioner in the primary.

P.V. approves Eldred school bids

BRODHEADSVILLE — Contracts for construction of an $826,000 addition to Eldred Elementary School in Kunkletown were awarded Monday night by the Pleasant Valley School Board, but directors did not give contractors a formal okay to begin work.

The notice to proceed with construction of the six-classroom addition will be given by Oct. 6, the tentative date the board expects to receive $805,000 from the sale of its general obligation bonds.

Bond counsel Richard Wood of Harrisburg advised the board to wait until they have the money before notifying contractors to proceed, in case a taxpayer files a suit to halt the project.

Although chances of that happening are "remote," Wood said an injunction would financially burden the district.

That action by the board will delay the start of construction of the addition by 14 working days, but should not disturb the completion date of September 1976, said project architect Lester Stein of Nazareth.

When board members questioned Stein about the delay, the architect said the five contractors can start immediately if they want to, but must assume any liability incurred.

Contracts were awarded to: Wind Gap Builders, Inc. of Stroudsburg, general construction, $420,750; H.C. Archibald, Co., Inc. of Stroudsburg, heating and ventilating, $88,000; H.C. Archibald Co., plumbing, $51,000; Wind Gap Electric of Wind Gap, electrical, $71,023, and Allentown Bar & Restaurant Supply, Inc. of Allentown, food service equipment, $57,975.

In related action, the board approved a resolution to direct Security Bank & Trust Co. of Stroudsburg to invest the proceeds of the bond issue. The investment is expected to yield about $21,000 in interest over one year.

The district is building the addition — which consists of six new classrooms, kitchen, cafeteria and faculty planning area — to reduce overcrowding caused by a student population that is expanding at the rate of about 10 per cent a year.

Over the 20 year life of the bond issue, the addition will cost the district $1,189,200. The board has already raised taxes to pay for the new yearly debt of $59,460.

The bonds, sold through L.F. Rothschild & Co. of New York City, will yield an average interest rate over 20 years of 6.7 per cent, a rate Rothschild says is a benefit to the district.

Teacher charity purely good 'cents'

STROUDSBURG — Teachers in the Stroudsburg Area School District did not renegotiate a cost of living increase last month because union officials doubted they could win, William Shearer, president of the Stroudsburg Area Teachers Assn. (SATA), said Monday.

Teachers did not withdraw from negotiations to save district taxpayers any money, as most people had assumed, he revealed.

Shearer said the apparent deception "was not intentional" and not implied in statements to the news media on Sept. 5. At that time, Shearer said teachers were withdrawing from reopening wage negotiations after studying the labor statistics and the economy.

A clause in SATA's two-year contract says the association can renegotiate for an additional cost of living increase this year if the cost of living during the 1974 fiscal year exceeded 8.5 per cent.

The contract specifies the figures used shall be those supplied by the Philadelphia Bureau of Labor Statistics, Shearer said.

Labor bureau statistics show an 8.36 per cent cost of living increase from July through June 1975. Statistics supplied by the Pennsylvania State Education Association (PSEA) show an 8.6 per cent jump in inflation during that period, he explained.

The issue of reopening negotiations, he said, would have gone to arbitration if the teachers had pressed the matter.

"Talking to the negotiators

(from SATA), we didn't feel the money we would get was worth it (arbitration)," he said. The money gained by reopening negotiations would have amounted to about $30 for each of the 187 teachers in the local, he said.

Adding to the discrepancy was an argument over how many months to include in the fiscal year when calculating the cost of living increase, he continued.

Shearer said teachers did not deceive the public by not telling them specific reasons why they would not seek a cost of living increase.

"We never said the cost of living (had been exceeded)."

Teachers are receiving pay increases of about 8.5 per cent each year during the 1974-75 school year.

Two cyclists injured

STROUDSBURG — Two Stroudsburg cyclists were injured in separate accidents occurring within 45 minutes of each other Sunday.

Stroud Township police reported bicyclist Joan G. Price, 24, 1995 W. Main St., Stroudsburg, and motorcyclist Donald M. Stouffer, 32, of Carlisle, both received minor leg injuries at 12:15 p.m. Sunday.

Miss Price apparently did not see the northbound motorcycle on Rte. 209 at Pocono Park Drive and attempted to cross the highway.

Notre Dame shoots down Eagles

FOXBORO, Mass. (UPI) — Freshman Jim Browner ripped 10 yards up the middle in the third period after his older brother Ross had recovered a fumble Monday night to lead Notre Dame to a 17-3 victory over Boston College in a nationally televised football game.

The triumph was Notre Dame's first under new coach Dan Devine and its 12th straight opening-game victory.

Sophomore Al Hunter, who missed last season along with Ross Browner because of a disciplinary suspension, sealed the game with a touchdown 50 seconds into the final period on a 24-yard pitchout around the right side. The two teams were tied 3-3 at halftime on field goals of 30 yards by Notre Dame's Dave Reeve and 45 yards by Boston College's Fred Steinfert.

The Eagles defense, which had held Notre Dame to 133 yards in the opening half, loosened after Ross Browner fell on a Keith Barnett fumble of quarterback Mike Kruczek's errant pitchout.

Notre Dame, taking over on its own 40 yard line, found the end zone in eight plays. Quarterback Rick Slager, who had only 18 minutes of playing time going into the game, completed three passes in the drive for 27 yards. Jim Browner, who gained 95 yards in 24 carries, lost one yard on a first and goal from the nine yard line then burst straight

Boston College got one first down the next time it had the ball but, with less than a minute to go in the first period, free safety Randy Harrison intercepted a deflected Kruczek pass at the Eagle 49 and returned it seven yards. Hunter moved four yards to the BC 38. Slager found tight end Ken MacAfee with a 12-yard pass to the BC 26 and Jim Browner gained two more yards before Hunter took off on his scoring run.

Slager faked a handoff into the line, then pitched out to the speedy Hunter who cut to the right sideline, back towards the middle, then into the right corner of the end zone.

Boston College still had more than 14 minutes to catch up but the staunch Notre Dame defense, led by Ross Browner and All America Steve Neihaus, would not allow the Eagles past the Notre Dame 49.

Glen Capriola, not expected to see much action, was the game's leading rusher with 107 yards in 15 attempts. The Eagles' junior was voted the game's top offensive player while Ross Browner received defensive honors.

In the first half, the two teams played conservative football before a Schaefer Stadium record crowd of 61,501 fans.

Notre Dame outgained Boston College 133-131 in the opening half, getting 130 of those yards on the ground as Slager could complete only one of five passes. The Irish scored first at 6:52 of the second period on Reeve's field goal nine plays after the defense had stopped Boston College on the Notre Dame 22. Boston College got its only points with 11 seconds left in the half.

Rooker pitched the distance in the nightcap to win his 13th game against nine losses and retired the last 16 Cubs in a row.

Zisk's 20th homer highlighted a three-run fourth inning off rookie Willie Prall, second game loser. Dave Parker had three doubles, driving in two runs with one of them in the fifth when Duffy Dyer also had a two-run single off Buddy Schultz.

Warriors seek first win over Penn State booters

SPECIAL TO THE RECORD
EAST STROUDSBURG — Beaten the last two seasons by one goal apiece, East Stroudsburg State College's soccer team will be seeking its first series victory over Penn State today in a season-opening game at 3 p.m. in the ESSC Stadium.

The Warriors lost to Penn State, 3-2, last season and 1-0, two years ago. ESSC Coach John McKeon has its best chance for a victory today.

"If we play like we did in the scrimmages, our chances are good. We've improved tremendously since practice began two weeks ago," he indicated.

Penn State opened last Friday with a 1-1 tie against Lock Haven before a crowd of more than 5,200 fans at University Park.

The Nittany Lions took the lead, 1-0, on a goal by John Marsden after only 48 seconds. Lock Haven tied the game less than a minute later at 1:37 on Tony Caracio is glad of one thing. "Am I glad football games aren't 42 minutes long?" he said in response to a question. "I'm not glad, I'm tickled pink. But I guess Mike (Palisades coach Mike Boushell) wishes it was that long."

The Pirates were ahead 12-6 with five minutes left, but Pleasant Valley quarterback Donnie Nicholas tossed two touchdown passes, the second with less than two minutes left, and the Bears had their second straight win, 18-12.

But not before Caracio almost kicked himself for not passing before.

"The passing game was there for us," he conceded Monday, "but we had 200 yards rushing. We moved the ball despite the stack up they gave us, but our drives took a long time." And four or five ended with turnovers.

He waited a long time to get passing, though. "We completed a pass earlier, but lost it on a fumble. They also intercepted a pass on the two. We hold onto the ball and we score."

"We fumbled at the seven, 11 and 16 and we had some penalties at key times. In the first quarter, we had second-and-six from the 11. We go off sides and its back to the 11. We got nothing out of it."

Mixed emotions

When Lenny Litz's wife Madge gave birth to a baby girl, Tracy Jo, Thursday, he was probably the proudest guy around. That made him real happy and congratulations are in order.

But he wasn't satisfied with his Pius X Royals 22-13 win Saturday over Weatherly.

"We really didn't get going," he said. "I still wasn't pleased with the offense. We made too many mistakes, like fumbled snaps, bad execution."

But we had some good plays and got yardage," he added. "Against Slatington (in a scoreless tie), fumbles or miscues killed drives. This week we kept going. Steve Goffredo, Mark Albanese and Tony Casciano ran very well. But we still need consistency."

The first Weatherly score was an 80-yard fumble return. "On the first play, we recovered our own fumble," Litz said of the series than began at the Weatherly 10. "Then Craig (Happel, the quarterback) went back to pass, a back went the wrong way, the guy got through, hit Craig and when the ball went loose, there was nobody there to stop the guy. Our backs were looking the other way and by the time they turned around he was gone."

But he was happy the Royals won. "We're getting better," Litz said. "Our backs all ran well. The miscues hurt the drives."

Things better get better, too. "With the schedule we have, we can't play like we have and come out on top," Litz said. "Our schedule is no picnic. We have one of the toughest schedules around. No teams we play has lost yet."

Cardinals: Start all over

Saturday was a day Joe Ortelli and Pocono Mountain might want to forget. Sure, they didn't lose (they tied Jim Thorpe, 6-6), but there were a lot of things that happened that weren't exactly part of the game plan.

"Our linemen did well and then our backs didn't," Ortelli explained, "or our backs did well and our linemen didn't. We just weren't concentrating on what we were doing. It was the same problem we had in our scrimmages and the first game: we didn't have the backfield and the line working together."

As a consequence, the defense was on the field a lot and only a missed field goal with seven seconds left prevented defeat. "The defense hung in there," Ortelli said. "Still, it spent most of the game on the field and we can't have that."

So, with a week off before a toughie at Whitehall, the Cardinals are going back to the beginning. "I hope the break will help us," Ortelli said. "What we're going to do is go back to Aug. 18 (the first day of practice) and start all over."

Early in practice, the flu bug hit the team. "We had a span in the second week where we had only three days with the whole team," Ortelli recalled. "We need complete concentration. If the linemen are hurt or sick and can't practice with us, it hurts us. A Wing-T offense needs coordination for everybody's moves."

pulled muscle but is expected to be back in action today.

ESSC capped its pre-season scrimmage schedule by routing Lehigh, 5-1, Saturday.

The Warriors also are young with a fullback line of three sophomores Glen Cone, Bob Hartman and Fran Lewandowski and a freshman, Frank Stubb. The top reserve is another freshman, Stan Stoltzfus.

Goalie Paul Williamson, a junior, has never played in a varsity game before. He replaces Bob Stetler, voted the team's outstanding player last year.

The Warriors' halfback line should be strong with captain Blaz Stimac, three-year starter Tom Carney and Joe Donahue.

On the forward line will be sophomores Willy

No progress seen in strike situation

Patriots, owners still stalemated

FOXBORO, Mass. (UPI) — New England Patriots management wants their players back, but said Monday it's out of their hands. Meanwhile, the striking players waited to find out if they've got any friends in rest of the National Football League.

"There is no lockout at this moment because the players are on strike and you can't have a strike and a lockout at the same time," team spokesman Pat Horne said.

The Patriots voted 37-2 with five abstentions during the weekend to strike, scrubbing Sunday's exhibition game with the New York Jets. They avoided a possible confrontation Monday when a regularly scheduled workout was canceled because Shaeffer Stadium was being used for the Boston College-Notre Dame football game.

"If at any time the players said they were coming back, and the management said you're not coming back, then you've got a lockout, but this is something in the hands of a Management Council," Horne explained.

"We're sitting in limbo waiting for one side to make the move," either by players or by the Management Council, the legal representative of all NFL teams.

"I'm sure (coach Chuck) Fairbanks wants his players, but it's up to them. We just hope it will be resolved as soon as possible so our coaches can get back to gettin ready to play the opening game of the season," he said.

Wide receiver Randy Vataha, the Patriots player representative, said, "If we don't get the support we hope for (from the other clubs), then we'll sign a no-strike agreement and go back to work.

"If that happens, I don't think many of our players are going to want to pay their ($300) annual dues," he added. "There's no sense being a union if you really don't have one."

New England was scheduled to open its regular season Sunday against the Houston Oilers.

K.S. "Bud" Adams, owner of the Oilers, said Monday he suspected the Patriots were influenced in their strike vote by the injury to quarterback Jim Plunkett, who will not start Sunday.

"I think they realized they can't win without Plunkett, so this strike sort of killed two birds with one stone. I think it was the catalyst for the strike. It clinched their decision," Adams said.

A former Heisman Trophy winner, Plunkett separated his left shoulder in an exhibition game against San Diego and will be out a minimum of four weeks.

Vataha insisted the strike was called "to pressure our union as well as the management council to get this thing settled." A federal mediator has been conducting arbitrations between the players association and the management council since before last summer's NFL players strike.

The Patriots said they're fighting for the same "freedom issues" involved in the last strike.

They oppose the "Rozelle rule" which stipulates one club must compensate another for signing a player who had already played out his option with the other team. They also want a cost-of-living raise in their pension benefits.

State fullback Tom Donchez, picked up only last Friday after being dropped by the Buffalo Bills, and second year defensive tackle Jim Cagle, who played his college ball at Georgia. He was the Eagles' fifth round draft choice in 1974.

Cowboys

DALLAS (UPI) — The Dallas Cowboys Monday traded away yet another veteran player, offensive guard John Niland, and cut running back Bob Anderson, obtained only last week in a trade with the Denver Broncos.

In trimming their squad to the league maximum 43 players the Cowboys also let loose offensive tackle Rodney Wallace, who had been with the club four years.

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — In a surprise move, the San Francisco 49ers got down to the 43-player National Football League limit Monday by trading four-time All-Pro center Forrest Blue to the Baltimore Colts in exchange for undisclosed future draft choices.

The trade of Blue, a No. 1 draft pick out of Auburn in 1968, means that Stanford free agent rookie Bill Reid, 6-2, 242, will open at center for the 49ers when they open the season Sunday against the Minnesota Vikings.

"We hated to part with Blue but the preseason showing of Bill Reid allowed us to make the deal with Baltimore," Coach Dick Nolan said. "It was an offer we couldn't turn down."

Packers

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI) — The Green Bay Packers released veteran quarterback Jack Concannon and rookie running back Jim Germany on waivers Monday and placed tackle Randy Jackson on the injured reserve list.

Concannon, starting his 11th season, was used little in preseason, hitting 11 of 28 passes for 140 yards and two interceptions.

The decision left Green Bay with only veteran John Hadl, rookie Carlos Brown and newly acquired Don Milan at the quarterback spot as the team got down to the NFL regular season player limit of 43.

The Packers also said veteran defensive end Mike Fanucci was waived off the injured reserve list. Going into his fourth season, Fanucci had suffered an ankle injury earlier in the year.

Eagles

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The Philadelphia Eagles, in need of offensive line help, Monday acquired veteran guard John Niland from the Dallas Cowboys in exchange for an undisclosed future draft choice.

Niland, an all-pro from 1968 through 1973, is the second veteran guard the Eagles have picked up in three weeks.

Earlier they got guard Bill Lueck from the Green Bay Packers, also for an undisclosed future draft choice.

Niland, formerly of the University of Iowa, was the Cowboys' No. 1 draft in 1966 and has played in two Super Bowls. He is 6-3 and weighs 250 pounds.

The Eagles also announced the release of former Penn

Court-issued injunction to let Reese play football

By FLIP DeLUCA
Pocono Record Reporter

HARRISBURG — A Pennsylvania court Monday issued a temporary injunction against East Stroudsburg State College which will permit Stephen Reese to play football this season.

Reese was forbidden by the college's disciplinary board from driving on campus and representing the college in any student activity after he was found guilty of running a stop sign on campus and refusing to identify himself to campus security last December.

The injunction was issued by Judge Harry A. Kramer of Commonwealth Court. A hearing on the matter will be held at a later date.

According to David Katz, attorney for Reese, a hearing was held in Harrisburg two weeks ago but the judge reserved his decision until the college conducted another disciplinary hearing on its own. The college did so and come to the same decision, Katz said.

The attorney emphasized the appeal was not instituted because Reese opposes discipline but because the penalties for offenses should be established rather than left to the discretion of the college as is the current practice.

"The college can impose any penalty for any offense," Katz stated.

In making the motion for a special preliminary injunction,

Steve Reese

Katz asserted that Reese would suffer irreparable harm if he was not allowed to play football because it could injure his chances on a career in football playing or coaching.

When he learned of the injunction Monday, Reese said it was "a great moment. I'm glad I got it. It's a great feeling."

He said he has been working out all summer and has continued to do so even after he was prohibited from playing football.

"I'm more than eager to play. Football's a part of my life," the 22-year-old senior said. Reese said he hopes to play in this week's game against Montclair State.

Dennis Douds, ESSC football coach, said he doubts that Reese will be a starter this week because "he has to get in hitting shape."

Douds said he's glad Reese will have an opportunity to play but that he must prove he possesses the skill and knowledge to do the job.

Dr. Angelo Ortenzi, dean of students, said the injunction only knocks down the football aspect of the case. He said Reese is still on disciplinary probation and cannot drive a car on campus.

"It has been ordered," Ortenzi said of the injunction. "We don't agree with it but we must abide by the order of the court."

He said the court decision "does not reflect on our code of conduct or discipline procedures. Our procedures and code of conduct have been held to be totally fair."

Ortenzi said the incident involved "more than just a traffic violation" but declined to elaborate. He said all the facts will come out when the court conducts a full hearing.

Reese, a tight end, was a member of the All-Pennsylvania Conference Team in his sophomore year. His father is Charles Reese, former ESSC football coach.

ESSC linebacker Sheaffer 'super' against Rockets

Special to The Record

EAST STROUDSBURG — They call him the Chief. Now they're going to have to call him the Super Chief.

He's Doug Sheaffer, Chief of the East Stroudsburg State College defense who played a "super" game in the Warriors' 7-0 victory over Slippery Rock Saturday.

Sheaffer had two fumble recoveries, one of which led to the game's lone touchdown, and an interception. He was the school's nominee for the weekly ECAC All-East Division II team which will be announced later this week.

The 6-1, 205-pound senior plays the weakside outside linebacker which is labelled the Chief in the Warriors' defense.

"We had to give a name to the linebacker who calls our defensive signals and in keeping with the 'Warrior' nickname, we decided on Chief," said Denny Douds, ESSC head coach. Two of the other linebackers are named Warrior and Brave.

Sheaffer has called the team's defensive signals for three years and he is considered by Douds to be one of the most knowledgeable players the Warriors have ever had.

Being outside, I am always looking in and I can see what is happening on the whole defense and I can help the linemen and other linebackers," Sheaffer said.

His experience helps him greatly in the position and has made him a vastly improved player than when he came to ESSC four years ago from Conestoga Valley High School outside of Lancaster.

"I've learned to read formations and I know what to look for. Sometimes linemen are leaning the way the play is going. Sometimes you can read a play by looking in a back's eye. Sometimes the alignment itself will give away a play," Sheaffer explained.

"These are the little things which you usually don't know in high school in reading defenses," he added.

Scouting reports are much more sophisticated than in high school, according to Sheaffer, and a big part in any game.

"We had Slippery Rock scouted well. We had their tendencies and often we knew exactly what was coming," he said.

"On my interception, the quarterback sprinted away and from the scouting reports, I knew that meant a throw-back-pass. So I dropped back to the spot and they threw the ball right where I was," he added.

"Actually, Willard (Stem, halfback) and Roger (Christman, linebacker) also had read the play and were right beside me and just as easily could have had the interception," he continued.

Sheaffer labelled the win over Slippery Rock the greatest of his four-year college career. The previous "greatest win" was the 23-18 victory over Millersville two years ago in which the defense held the Marauders four times on the goal-line in the fourth quarter.

"We all hung together on defense against Slippery Rock. No matter how close they got to the goal-line, we stayed calm and we just knew we would stop them somehow, somewhere," he said.

"This year's defense reminds me of the defense two years ago when we went 6-1-1. We're all together and we have confidence in each other," he added.

The Super Chief is counting on the Warriors staying on the right track for their two consecutive home games against Montclair State Saturday and West Chester Sept. 27. Both contests will start at 8 p.m. at the Stroudsburg High School Stadium.

ESSC unbeaten in hockey event

MOUNT POCONO — East Stroudsburg State College was undefeated with five wins and a tie in the annual Mount Pocono Field Hockey Weekend.

The Warriors' defense, headed by freshman goalie Sue Schnee of Stroudsburg, allowed only one goal in the six games. Other defensive stars were fullbacks Darlene Hershey and Deb Clifford and halfbacks Deb Haas, Jayne Hollinger and Vickie Geyer.

Hope Donnell was the team's leading scorer with five goals with Nancy Skean adding three. Both are sophomores.

Other goals were scored by Ruth Ann Stump, Kyle Katzenmoyer, Terry Ricker and Barb Hobensack.

ESSC's wins were registered over Norlanco, 3-0; Elkins Park, 1-0; North Jersey, 2-1; Mid Atlantic, 2-0; and Long Island, 4-0. Four ESSC alumni players, Bobbi Spillane, Jan Hilborn, Patti Hyland and Carol Dutcavich, were on the Elkins Park team. The tie was against the Ursinus Old Timers team, 0-0.

The ESSC field hockey team will play a home scrimmage against Lafayette College Thursday in preparation for the season's opener Oct. 3 at West Chester.

Petty's Dover victory boosts his point lead

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Richard Petty's comeback win Sunday in the Delaware 500 at Dover Downs, Del., International Speedway tightened his grip on the overall point lead after 22 Winston Cup races, the National Association of Stock Car Racing (NASCAR) said Monday.

Petty's hard-earned victory marked the 20th time in 22 events this year that the 38-year-old Dodge driver from Randleman, N.C., finished among the top ten.

Petty, who earlier in the week denied rumors that he would retire at the end of the year, got his 10th victory of the current Winston Cup season and his 174th career win at Delaware. His overall total of 3,694 points makes him almost a sure bet for an unprecedented sixth Grand National Championship, NASCAR said.

The victory pushed Petty's earnings for the year to $247,895.

Trailing Petty's 365 points in the third leg of Winston Cup competition is Bruce Hill with 315.

NEW YORK (UPI) — The

Yom Kippur holiday and rising interest rates drove many investors to the sidelines

Monday as prices fell for the fifth consecutive day. Trading was the slowest in almost 10 months on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones industrial average, a 30.82-point loser the past four sessions, lost another

60 points to 803.19 by the turnover that totaled only

8,670,000 shares, compared with 12,230,000 traded Friday. It was the slowest since 7,403,160 were traded Nov. 29, 1974, the day after Thanksgiving.

Many investors were observing the Yom Kippur religious holiday.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index lost 0.42 to 82.88. The average price of an NYSE

common share decreased by 16 cents. Declines ripped advances,

894 to 275, among the 1,708

issues crossing the tape.

Analysts said it was difficult to determine any major trend in the market because of the slow trading. And the news background was mixed.

PONYTAIL

"Rodney, how would you like to have the honor of being the FIRST boy I go steady with this semester?"

Lester Coleman, M.D.

Insomnia is frequent complaint

One of the most chronic complaints brought to the attention of doctors is insomnia. Some patients insist that they don't get more than an hour or two of sleep each night.

Others claim that they pace the floor all night until they are exhausted, and then sleep restlessly for a few minutes.

Doctors have heard every variation of this story. Insomnia is the product of our anxiety-ridden, turbulent civilization.

Many people become impatient when they cannot fall asleep immediately. Their irritability and annoyance only make restful sleep impossible.

This may be based on the fact that persons assume that it is imperative to get the same number of hours of sleep every night. Any variation from this, even half an hour, seems to impose a burden that lasts throughout their waking day.

The body has a sleep thermostat which fulfills its sleep requirements if it is not undermined by tension. It is such anxiety that immediately drives the restless to seek drugs to induce sleep quickly.

Unfortunately, there is a tendency to depend on and overuse these drugs. The result is a slow, progressive dependence. Then a firm cycle seems to be established. Insomnia, restlessness, drugs, then greater dependence on drugs which leads to larger and larger doses.

There are many more effective ways of controlling insomnia than by immediately resorting to one of the many drugs created to induce sleep.

It is a great art to be able to divorce one's self from the emotional problems of the working day, at home or at business.

Many people, unable to separate themselves from the problems that bombard them all day long, allow these problems to intrude on their resting hours. Anticipation of the next day's problems also cheat these people of a good night's sleep.

It must be recognized, too, that a heavy evening meal, overindulgence in tobacco and alcohol, extreme fatigue and intense emotional activity are not conducive to restful sleep.

The occasional use of barbiturates or variations of the sleeping pill, used under the direction of a doctor, is, of course, helpful. When, however, there is unlimited dependence on these drugs, psychological support and guidance may be necessary to break the cycle of dependence.

SPEAKING OF YOUR HEALTH . . . There is no special charm in letting infants or small children take sips of alcoholic drinks. This is a parlor game that should be avoided.

Jack O'Brian's

Voice of Broadway

NEW YORK — We got our friend Sir Lew Grade, boss of the biggest family-run showbiz conglomerate in the world, talking about his upcoming projects — and they tripped off his tongue as casually as smoke rising from his Good-year Blimp of a Havana.

Those Grade-A smokers often set Sir Lew off into analyzing what's permanently new. Ah, the Mafia? Another "Godfather"? Hardly; Sir Lew decided he didn't want an imitative, fabricated exaggeration of authenticity; he wanted the Real Mafia — so he ordered and already has finished five one-hour episodes of his series "The Roots of the Mafia," a stiletto-sharp dissection of the currently most fascinating crime subject in the history of murder and violence.

Something for Our Bicentennial? "George III — King of America," which old George was until Boston teatime. How about a six-parter about Disraeli? Fine. Find another George Arliss; soon! Shooting starts shortly.

Sir Lew's "Henry VII" was such a worldwide success that he exhaled a series about similarly celebrated royalty of the not too distant past. Again indeed — and so "The Royal Victorians" already has been sold to CBS.

"Some of these sound as if they're aimed at a minority audience," Sir Lew puffed. "But Henry VII" was the first time a series of that nature won number-one ratings everywhere so the world remains intrigued with royalty — Shakespeare taught us that anyway. If presented properly with a lot of stars to catch the public's eye and interest, we certainly have the subjects, maybe more than Shakespeare had. They will have wide appeal."

Sir Lew exudes ideas faster than the cigar smoke. He foresees the time when China will become a TV client. A series about Confucius, say? Well, Sir Lew ruminates, about 350,000,000 Confucians exist, mostly in China and Taiwan; why not? Does he have some scholar poring through the Analects? After all, some 2,500 years are untapped to sound out if Confucius said all those sage one-liners; the descendants who follow him down to the present should have an interest in seeing it all on TV and in movie theaters.

What about the Hindus? There are 400,000,000 and The Veda may be researched, a huge body of sacred texts; thousands of stories, rich in drama and tension. Islam? Some 465,000,000 untapped customers there, 40,000 even in the U.S.A. Get out the Koran! Mohammed speaks? Why not!

The Japanese love movies and TV, so why not something for the Shinto millions? No real scripture is available, but centuries of rituals, customs, festivals, a great galaxy of Gods for the worldwide congregations of almost 65,000,000 to worship and remember and customs which originated from the beginnings of Japanese culture; it's a folk religion almost exclusively limited to Japanese; shinto means "Way of the Gods," and there's got to be a series there somewhere; one special?

How about 50,000,000-some Taoists, virtually all in Asia? Great untapped future, if not for a series, maybe to wrap up some of the exotic religions into a special or series for Educational TV; there's lots of exotic religion followers in the world already — not just in America and England — and they're paying more for their shows all the time, making it a near-future possibility to create quality-productions for minority audiences, even on the other side of the earth and maybe one of those space probes will get up there like the stars of "Space 1999" and open a new universal market; maybe they'll also be making great shows like Sir Lew and there can be exchange of productions, such as the British-financed BBC and America's educational TV already practice.

Such are the mental gymnastics of a mind like Sir Lew Grade's. He is one of the easiest showbiz tycoons to approach we've ever known. He has a rare capacity for quick, confident, experienced decisions, the only total showman we've known anywhere except for John F. Royal, the first programming boss of NBC, who set the style, tone and success patterns for all of broadcasting, a man who brought true showmanship to what has become a ganglia of indecision and tangled imitations.

John Royal innovated almost everything that became popular for decades on radio and TV — with quality. He pioneered sports broadcasts — we watched 1939 football games on NBC-TV; Paul Berlenbach fought a TV prize fight on NBC-TV from the stage of the Capitol Theater on Bdwy. in 1937.

Mr. Royal — 89 years old July 4 and still a valued NBC consultant — put the 1939 World's Fair on TV, in 1938 pointed his TV cameras out a window from the then-NBC-TV headquarters on 5th Ave. at John Ward, who stood shakily on a Gotham Hotel ledge for 14 hours, shared his despair with a small number of TV set owners — before he jumped to his death and into a consequent movie starring Richard Basehart, "Fourteen Hours." The N.Y. police emergency squad invented a "John Ward Net" to save many subsequent would-be suicides. Mr. Royal created the first "TV Spectaculars," later "Specials," such as Gertrude Lawrence "live" in "Susan and God," coincident with its Broadway engagement.

Sir Lew Grade is cut from the same brilliant pattern: he and Royal knew show business not from ad agencies but from being in it.

John F. Royal, like Sir Lew Grade, had the courage to "make mistakes." He urged his callow underlings to "Go out and make mistakes." Easy for you, said one young NBC veep he told just that in our hearing, "You never made any." "I didn't!" he queried. "I made hundreds — the mistakes could be corrected. What I'm saying is to make up your mind!" The lad we witnessed exuding such promissory indecision that day never did make up his mind; he lasted a year with NBC, already had exited ABC and CBS, went on to H'wood, Mecca of frightened indecision, where he remained, unto today, a successful failure; it couldn't have happened to John Royal and Sir Lew Grade.

Drug laws abroad:

If you're touring a foreign country this summer, get set for some hard news.

No matter which way you go, you'll run smack into drug laws that are a whole lot tougher than ours.

You may have heard differently. You may have heard possession and sale of drugs overseas or south of our own border is okay. Or at least tolerated. That's a lie. Drugs are illegal. The same as here. And that's the truth.

Only one thing is different. The penalties are stiffer. In Lebanon, for instance, possession gets you 3 to 5 years in a mental hospital. That's the law. And there's no way around their law.

Drug arrests of Americans overseas have jumped 70% since last year. And nobody can help. Not friends. Or family. Or the smartest lawyer in town. Not the United States government.

That's why there are over 700 American citizens doing time on drug charges in foreign jails.

Those are the facts. And so are these: the drug laws and penalties of 15 foreign countries.

Which one will you be visiting?

Mexico. Possession, 2 to 9 years plus fine. Trafficking, 3 to 10 years plus fine. Illegal import or export of drugs, 6 to 15 years plus fine. Persons arrested on drug charges can expect a minimum of 6 to 12 months pre-trial confinement. U.S. Embassy: Cor. Danubio and Pasodclafornia 305 Colonia Cuauhtemora Mexico City, Mexico Tel. 276-3400

Spain. Penalty depends on quantity of drugs involved. Less than 500 grams, fine and release on bail until trial. More than 500 grams, heavy fine plus minimum of 6 years in jail. U.S. Embassy: Serrano 75 Madrid, Spain Tel. 276-3400

Greece. Possession, minimum 2 years in jail. Trafficking, 5 to 20 years plus fine. U.S. Embassy: 91-Basilissis Sophia's Blvd. Athens, Greece Tel. 712951

Germany. Possession, 3 years. Law may be changed this summer demanding increased penalty. U.S. Embassy: Nehlemer Avenue 53 Bonn-Bad Godeberg Bonn, Germany Tel. 02229-1955

United Kingdom. Possession of heroin or LSD, 7 years in prison or a fine of $1,000, or both. Possession of Codeine or Cannabis, 5 years imprisonment. U.S. Embassy: 24/31 Grosvenor Square W.1, London, England Tel. 499-9000

Denmark. For violation of the Law of Euphoria, fine, imprisonment or both, up to 2 years, at the discretion of the court.
